

Mood and Tone

DIRECTIONS: The passage below is from the novel Hard Times by Charles Dickens. Read the passage. Then answer the questions.

So, Mr. McChoismachil began in his best manner. He and some one hundred and forty other schoolmasters, had been lately hired at the same time, in the same factory, at the same paragon, like so many plate-iron legs. He had been put through an intensive course of paces, and had answered volumes of head-bowing questions. Orthographies, etymologies, verbs, and prepositions, biographies, calculations, geography, and general cosmography, the science of compound proportion, algebra, long-unsisting and revelling, vocal music, and drawing from models, were all at the ends of his ten-fitted fingers. He had worked his dusty way into Her Majesty's most Honourable Privy Council's Schedule B, and had taken the bloom off the highest branches of mathematics and physical sciences, French, German, Latin, and Greek. He knew all about all the water sheds of all the world (why never they wet), and all the histories of all the peoples, and all the names of all the seas and mountains, and all the productions, manners, and customs of all the countries, and all their soundings and beatings on the two and thirty points of the compass. Ah, rather overdone, Mr. McChoismachil. This had only been a little less, how infinite better he might have taught much more!

1. The tone of the passage is:

- a. nostalgic b. pessimistic c. satirical d. ironic

2. The mood of the passage is:

- a. humorous b. satirical c. informative d. room-filled

3. Which context clue did you use to determine your answer?
