Equivalence Amanda L. Golbeck, 2017-04-28 Equivalence Elizabeth L. Scott at Berkeley is the compelling story of one pioneering statistician's relentless twenty-year effort to promote the status of women in academe and science. Part biography and part microhistory, the book provides the context and background to understand Scott's masterfulness at using statistics to help solve societal problems. In addition to being one of the first researchers to work at the interface of astronomy and statistics and an early practitioner of statistics using high-speed computers, Scott worked on an impressively broad range of questions in science, from whether cloud seeding actually works to whether ozone depletion causes skin cancer. Later in her career, Scott became swept up in the academic women's movement. She used her well-developed scientific research skills together with the advocacy skills she had honed in such activities as raising funds for Martin Luther King Jr. and keeping Free Speech Movement students out of jail toward policy making that would improve the condition of the academic workforce for women. The book invites the reader into Scott's universe, a window of inspiration made possible by the fact that she saved and dated every piece of paper that came across her desk. Secret Wings of World War II Lance Cole, 2015-06-30 There are many myths and legends surrounding the advanced German aeronautical technology of the Second World War. There are also facts and proven events. Yet within these stories and behind these facts lie conspiracy theories, mistaken assumptions, and denials that seem to contradict the evidence. So what really happened? How far ahead were the German scientists? And of even greater interest, why and how? There have been other books about advanced German wartime aeronautics, yet few authors have fully examined the detail of the designs and their relevance to the fighter and bomber legends of the 1950s and 60s, let alone the current crop of military and civil all-wing or blended-wing aircraft. This book charts the story from its origins through current-day innovations and beyond into the all-wing future of tomorrow. Scientific and Technical Aerospace Reports, 1966 Lists citations with abstracts for aerospace-related reports obtained from world-wide sources and announces documents that have recently been entered into the NASA Scientific and Technical Information Database. Yearbook of International Organizations 2014-2015 (Volume 4) Union Of International Associations, Union of International Associations, 2014-09-17 The Yearbook of International Organizations provides the most extensive coverage of non-profit international organizations currently available. Detailed profiles of international non-governmental and intergovernmental organizations (IGO) collected and documented by the Union of International Associations can be found here. In addition to the history, aims, and activities of international organizations with their events, publications, and contact details, the volumes of the Yearbook include networks between associations, biographies of key people involved, and extensive statistical data. Providing both an international organizations and research bibliography, Volume 4 cites over 46,000 publications and information resources supplied by international organizations and provides nearly 18,000 research citations under 40 subject headings. This volume also includes a research bibliography on international organizations and transnational associations.
