Faces Of Talent:

Faces of Talent Till Brönner, 2014 In true Blue Note tradition the cover of Till Bronner's self titled 2012 album is in itself a work of art The musician who had played with Natalie Cole and Dave Brubeck before he became a celebrity himself enjoys being photographed by star photographer Andreas H Bitesnich resulting in portraits that are cool but without a hint of artificiality Bronner is not only one of the best and most successful jazz trumpet players of our time but he also has a special relationship with the visual arts Since the moment he received his first Leica camera he discovered a love of photography and is turning the tables He captures internationally famous musicians and actors from Beth Ditto to Armin Muller Stahl David Guetta to Gregory Porter Because of his musical background Bronner has the necessary feeling for timing and the right orchestration His photographic style is spare and no method is an end in itself The result impressive black and white portraits that reveal unknown sides of familiar faces When viewing these images you can immediately sense that there is a special relationship between the photographer and his subjects making these photos exceptionally compelling SELLING POINTS This successful jazz musician shows us another exciting facet of his artistic talent Till Bronner's photographs will be honoured in an exhibition at the September 2014 Photokina Fair in Cologne Germany An illustrated book that will enrapture music fans and photography lovers alike 120 duotone photographs Heads, Faces, Types, Races Victor Gabriel practical work the book includes sample questionnaires and paths for study moderators and research analysts to follow Drawn from over fifteen years of experience in research departments at various media companies Creating the Viewer looks toward the future of media viewership discussing how the concept of the viewer has changed in the age of streaming how services such as Netflix view market research and how viewers themselves can shift the industry through their media choices behaviors and activities

Ramutsindela, David Mickler, 2019-06-13 The book draws upon the expertise and international research collaborations forged by the Worldwide Universities Network Global Africa Group to critically engage with the intersection in theory and practice of the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) and Africa's development agendas and needs. Further, it argues that and demonstrates how the SDGs should be understood as an aspirational blueprint for development with multiple meanings that are situated in dynamic and contested terrains. As the SDGs have substantial implications for development policy and resourcing at both the macro and micro levels, their relevance is not only context specific but should also be assessed in terms of the aspirations and needs of ordinary citizens across the continent. Drawing on analyses and evidence from both the natural and social sciences, the book demonstrates that progress towards the SDGs must meet demands for improving human well-being under diverse and challenging socio-economic, political, and environmental conditions. Examples include those from the mining industry, public health, employment, and the media. In closing, it highlights how international collaboration in the form of research networks can enhance the production of critical knowledge on and engagement with the SDGs in Africa.
