The administration of examinations for 15-19 year olds in England

Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Education Committee,2012-07-03 This report from the Education Committee looks at the administration of examinations for 15 19 year olds in England The Committee expresses serious concerns about incentives in the exam system and about competition on syllabus content Incentives in the system should be changed so the downward pressure through the competition of exam boards is mitigated The Committee considers a number of options to change incentives including i A single board This offers a simpler system with no risk of competition but the Committee believes the cost risk and disruption outweigh the benefits ii Franchising of subjects to exam boards This removes syllabus competition but again has downsides 3 Or the current system of multiple boards The Committee sees no benefit in competition on syllabus content but the setting and marking of exams and associated administration if properly regulated could generate incentives and drive quality up offering value for money to schools and colleges The Committee also recommends the development of national syllabuses accredited by Ofqual The syllabuses would be developed by exam boards in conjunction with learned bodies and employer organisations and could therefore retain the benefits of competition on quality and the incentive for exam boards to innovate

Wallis,2023-07-03 With classroom response systems or CRSs also known as Student Response Systems Individual Response Systems or informally clickers in use in higher education for some 20 years there is now both ample research and a wealth of examples and ideas to draw on for faculty who are contemplating their use or exploring new ways to integrate them in their teaching The research demonstrates that integrated purposefully in courses the use of clickers aligns with what neuroscience tells us about the formation of memory and the development of learning In addition they elicit contributions from otherwise reticent students and enhance collaboration even in large lecture courses foster more honest responses to discussion prompts increase students engagement and satisfaction with the classroom environment and provide an instantaneous method of formative assessment This book presents a brief history of the development of CRSs and a survey of empirical research to provide a context for current best practices and then presents seven chapters providing authentic effective examples of the use of clickers across a wide range of academic disciplines demonstrating how they can be effective in helping students to recognize their misconceptions and grasp fundamental concepts Like all pedagogical interventions classroom response systems are no panacea and the experienced contributors candidly describe avoidable pitfalls while demonstrating how clickers can deepen student learning and how by providing instantaneous feedback they enable teachers to make adjustments on the fly to better address student understandings or misunderstandings The final chapter explores pros and cons of response systems that use mobile devices and smart phones and the book concludes with an annotated list of further resources such as books articles and videos

How We Teach Science John L. Rudolph, 2019-06-01 A former Wisconsin high school science teacher makes the case that how and why we teach science matters especially now that its legitimacy is under attack Why teach science The answer to that question will determine how it is taught Yet despite the enduring belief in this country that science should be taught there has been no enduring consensus about how or why This is especially true when it comes to teaching scientific process Nearly all of the basic knowledge we have about the world is rock solid The science we teach in high schools in particular laws of motion the structure of the atom cell division DNA replication the universal speed limit of light is accepted as the way nature works Everyone also agrees that students and the public more generally should understand the methods used to gain this knowledge But what exactly is the scientific method Ever since the late 1800s scientists and science educators have grappled with that question Through the years they've advanced an assortment of strategies ranging from the laboratory method to the five step method to science as inquiry to no method at all How We Teach Science reveals that each strategy was influenced by the intellectual cultural and political circumstances of the time In some eras learning about experimentation and scientific inquiry was seen to contribute to an individual s intellectual and moral improvement while in others it was viewed as a way to minimize public interference in institutional science John Rudolph shows that how we think about and teach science will either sustain or thwart future innovation and ultimately determine how science is perceived and received by the public
