Sharing the Adventure with the Student National Research Council, Board on Science Education, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Space Studies Board, Planning Committee on Sharing the Adventure with the Student: Exploring the Intersections of NASA Space Science and Education: A Workshop, 2015-06-17 On December 23 2014 the Space Studies Board and the Board on Science Education of the National Research Council held a workshop on the NASA Science Mission Directorate SMD education program Sharing the Adventure with the Student The workshop brought together representatives of the space science and science education communities to discuss maximizing the effectiveness of the transfer of knowledge from the scientists supported by NASA's SMD to K 12 students directly and to teachers and informal educators The workshop focused not only on the effectiveness of recent models for transferring science content and scientific practices to students but also served as a venue for dialogue between education specialists education staff from NASA and other agencies space scientists and engineers and science content generators Workshop participants reviewed case studies of scientists or engineers who were able to successfully translate their research results and research experiences into formal and informal student science learning Education specialists shared how science can be translated to education materials and directly to students and teachers shared their experiences of space science in their classrooms Sharing the Adventure with the Student is the summary of the presentation and discussions of the workshop Daily Graphic Kingsley Inkoom, 2014-09-06 AIIMS Annual Report All-India Institute of Medical Sciences, 2014 Daily Graphic Ransford Tetteh, 2014-09-25 Understanding Developmental Dyslexia: Linking Perceptual and Cognitive Deficits to Reading Processes Pierluigi Zoccolotti, Peter F. de Jong, Donatella Spinelli, 2016-06-24 Understanding the mechanisms responsible for developmental dyslexia DD is a key challenge for researchers A large literature mostly concerned with learning to read in opaque orthographies emphasizes phonological interpretations of the disturbance Other approaches focused on the visual perceptual aspects of orthographic coding Recently this perspective was supported by imaging data showing that individuals with DD have hypo activation in occipito temporal areas a finding common to both transparent and opaque orthographies Nevertheless it is difficult to infer causal relationships from activation data Accommodating these findings within the cognitive architecture of reading processes is still an open issue This is a general problem which is present in much of the literature For example several studies investigating the perceptual and cognitive abilities that distinguish groups of children with and without DD failed to provide explicit links with the reading process Thus several areas of investigation e.g acoustic deficits or magnocellular deficiencies have been plagued by replication failures Furthermore much research has neglected the possible contribution of comorbid symptoms By contrast it is now well established that developmental disorders present a large spectrum of homotopic and heterotopic comorbidities that make causal interpretations problematic This has led to the idea that the etiology of learning difficulties is multifactorial thus challenging the traditional models of DD Recent genetic studies provide information on the multiple risk factors that contribute to the genesis of the disturbance. Another critical issue in DD is that much of the research has been conducted in English speaking individuals. However, English is a highly irregular orthography and doubts have been raised on the appropriateness of automatically extending interpretations based on English to other more regular orthographies. By contrast, important information can be gotten from systematic comparisons across languages. Thus, the distinction between regular and irregular orthographies is another potentially fruitful area of investigation. Overall, in spite of much research, current interpretations seem unable to integrate all available findings. Some proposals focus on the cognitive description of the reading profile and explicitly ignore the distal causes of the disturbance. Others propose visual acoustic or phonological mechanisms but fail to link them to the pattern of reading impairment present in different children. The present Research Topic brings together studies based on different methodological approaches: i.e. behavioural studies examining cognitive and psycholinguistic factors, eye movement investigations, biological markers, neuroimaging and genetic studies involving dyslexic groups with and without comorbid symptoms and in different orthographies, transparent and opaque, to identify the mechanisms underlying DD. The RT does not focus on a single model or theory of dyslexia but rather brings together different approaches and ideas which we feel are fruitful for a deeper understanding of developmental dyslexia.

Frontiers in the Acquisition of Literacy Claire M. Fletcher-Flinn, 2015-09-28. Learning to read and to spell are two of the most important cultural skills that must be acquired by children and for that matter anyone learning a second language. We are not born with an innate ability to read. A reading system of mental representations that enables us to read must be formed in the brain. Learning to read in alphabetic orthographies is the acquisition of such a system which links mental representations of visual symbols (letters in print words) with pre-existing phonological sound and semantic comprehension. Cognitive systems for language. Although spelling draws on the same representational knowledge base and is usually correlated with reading, the acquisition processes involved are not quite the same. Spelling requires the sequential production of letters in words and at beginning levels there may not be a full degree of integration of phonology with its representation by the orthography. Reading on the other hand requires only the recognition of a word for pronunciation. Hence spelling is more difficult than reading and learning to spell may necessitate more complete representations or more conscious access to them. The learning processes that children use to acquire such cognitive systems in the brain and whether these same processes are universal across different languages and orthographies are central theoretical questions. Most children learn to read and spell their language at the same time, thus the co ordination of these two facets of literacy acquisition needs explication as well as the effect of different teaching approaches on acquisition Lack of progress in either reading and or spelling is also a major issue of concern for parents and teachers necessitating a cross disciplinary approach to the problem encompassing major efforts from researchers in neuroscience cognitive science experimental psychology and education The purpose of this Research Topic is to summarize and review what has been accomplished so far and to further explore these general issues Contributions from different perspectives are welcomed and could include theoretical computational and empirical works that focus on the acquisition of literacy including cross orthographic research

Dual-use life science research and biosecurity in the 21st Century: Social, Technical, Policy, and Ethical Challenges Jonathan E. Suk, Kathleen M. Vogel, Amanda Jane Ozin, 2015-06-04 In September 2011 scientists announced new experimental findings that would not only threaten the conduct and publication of influenza research but would have significant policy and intelligence implications The findings presented a modified variant of the H5N1 avian influenza virus hereafter referred to as the H5N1 virus that was transmissible via aerosol between ferrets These results suggested a worrisome possibility the existence of a new airborne and highly lethal H5N1 virus that could cause a deadly global pandemic In response a series of international discussions on the nature of dual use life science arose These discussions addressed the complex social technical political security and ethical issues related to dual use research This Research Topic will be devoted to contributions that explore this matrix of issues from a variety of case study and international perspectives

The Changing Faces of Glutathione, a Cellular Protagonist Alfonso Pompella, Alessandro Corti, 2015-07-17 Glutathione GSH has been described for a long time just as a defensive reagent against the action of toxic xenobiotics drugs pollutants carcinogens both directly and as a cofactor for GSH transferases As a prototype antioxidant it has been involved in cell protection from the noxious effect of excess oxidant stress both directly and as a cofactor of glutathione peroxidases In addition it has long been known that GSH is capable of forming disulfide bonds with cysteine residues of proteins and the relevance of this mechanism S glutathionylation in regulation of protein function has been well documented in a number of research fields Rather paradoxically it has also been highlighted that GSH and notably its catabolites as originated by metabolism by gamma glutamyltransferase can promote oxidative processes by participating in metal ion mediated reactions eventually leading to formation of reactive oxygen species and free radicals Also a fundamental role of GSH has been recognized in the storage and transport of nitric oxide NO in the form of S nitrosoglutathione GSNO The significance of GSH as a major factor in regulation of cell life proliferation and death can be regarded as the integrated result of all these roles as well as of more which are emerging in diverse fields of biology and pathophysiology Against this background modulation of GSH levels and GSH related enzyme activities represents a fertile field for experimental pharmacology in numerous and diverse perspectives of animal plant and microbiologic research This research topic includes 14 articles i e 4 Opinion Articles 6 Reviews and 4 Original Research Articles The contributions by several distinguished research groups each from his own standpoint of competence and expertise provide a comprehensive and updated view over the diverse roles the changing faces of GSH and GSH related enzymes in cell s health disease and death

Interdisciplinary Approaches to Multilingualism Suzanne Curtin, Mary Grantham O'Brien,Rahat Naqvi,2015-07-16 This research topic stems from the Interdisciplinary Approaches to Multilingualism conference which was hosted by the Language Research Centre at the University of Calgary It was the first conference of its kind which brought together the work of researchers educators and policy makers in the areas of first and second language acquisition from psycholinguistic and pedagogical perspectives The goal was to provide an opportunity for participants to engage with the implications of multilingualism from a range of perspectives including the effects of being bilingual from infancy to adulthood the process and benefits of learning multiple languages and the impact of multilingualism on society
