Fridman,V.L. Polyachenko,2012-12-06 It would seem that any specialist in plasma physics studying a medium in which the interaction between particles is as distance dependent as the interaction between stars and other gravitating masses would assert that the role of collective effects in the dynamics of gravitating systems must be decisive. However, among astronomers, this point of view has been recognized only very recently. So comparatively recently, serious consideration has been devoted to theories of galactic spiral structure in which the dominant role is played by the orbital properties of individual stars rather than collective effects. In this connection, we would like to draw the reader's attention to a difference in the scientific traditions of plasma physicists and astronomers whereby the former have explained the delay of the onset of controlled thermonuclear fusion by the intrigues of collective processes in the plasma while many a generation of astronomers were calculating star motions, solar and lunar eclipses and a number of other fine effects for many years ahead by making excellent use of only the laws of Newtonian mechanics. Therefore, for an astronomer, it is perhaps not easy to agree with the fact that the evolution of stellar systems is controlled mainly by collective effects and the habitual methods of theoretical mechanics. III astronomy must make way for the method of self-consistent fields.

Optics for Engineers Charles A. DiMarzio, 2024-03-13 This textbook provides an accessible introduction to the fundamentals of geometric and physical optics as they relate to practical problems encountered by engineers and researchers in designing and analyzing optical systems. In this updated edition, the author focuses on topics that are critical to understanding how the basic principles of optics affect design decisions. In addition to information on breadboarding experiments and prototypes, the new edition also expands its coverage of diffraction and includes numerous complete examples and practical reminders. Professor Charles A. DiMarzio is an associate professor in the Department of Electrical and Computer Engineering, the Department of Mechanical and Industrial Engineering, and the Department of Bioengineering at Northeastern University in Boston, Massachusetts. He spent 14 years at Raytheon Company's Electro Optics Systems Laboratory in coherent laser radar for air safety and meteorology. Among other projects, there he worked on an airborne laser radar flown on the Galileo II to monitor airflow related to severe storms, pollution, and wind energy, and another laser radar to characterize the wake vortices of landing aircraft. His current research in biomedical optics focuses on microscopy including coherent imaging, structured illumination, and multi-modal imaging. He is also a founding member of Gordon CenSSIS, the Gordon Center for Subsurface Sensing and Imaging Systems.
