

Introducción a la red de Google

La red de Google

Concepto

Sus clientes tienden a hacer muchas cosas online: buscar, comprar, leer noticias y navegar por sitios web interesantes. Por eso pensamos que debería poder dirigirse a ellos independientemente de lo que hagan en Internet. Y nuestra respuesta es la red de Google, que es el nombre que damos a todos los espacios en los que puede aparecer el anuncio de AdWords, incluidos los sitios de Google, las páginas web que se asocian con nosotros u otras ubicaciones como las aplicaciones de teléfonos móviles. Es como si exhibiera su mensaje en un estadio lleno de hinchas (Google reúne a un grupo de personas a quienes les interesa, las mete en el estadio y usted se encarga de ofrecer el espectáculo).

Este conjunto de sitios que denominamos red de Google se divide en grupos para que tenga un mayor control sobre dónde quiere que se publique su anuncio:

Red de Búsqueda:

- Búsqueda de Google, Google Shopping, Google Maps, Google Imágenes y Grupos de Google.
- Sitios de búsqueda asociados a Google (socios de búsqueda), como AOL.

Información sobre la Red de Búsqueda

Red de Display:

Sitios de Google (como YouTube, Blogger y Gmail) y miles de sitios web de socios en Internet.

Información sobre la Red de Display

¿Por qué es importante?

La Red de Google le puede poner en contacto con clientes en el momento preciso en el que realizan alguna actividad online relacionada con lo que usted ofrece, como buscar su producto o leer un blog sobre su sector de actividad. Como sus anuncios se pueden publicar en sitios relevantes, tiene más oportunidades de que los usuarios que los ven se conviertan en clientes.

Si entiende en qué consiste nuestra red y cómo puede controlar su configuración de red, puede sacarle partido a este universo de clientes interesados.

Cómo se utiliza

Para cada una de sus campañas publicitarias, debe elegir una configuración de red que le indique a Google dónde le gustaría publicar sus anuncios. Puede elegir Búsqueda de Google y Google Shopping, o toda la Red de Búsqueda (incluidos otros sitios de búsqueda de Google, como Maps e Imágenes, y los sitios de búsqueda que están asociados a Google), solo la Red de Display o todas las redes.

digital world Barry Gunter,2015-11-01 As consumer markets have developed and become more crowded and competitive so brands have become more important in enabling consumers to make informed choices This book shows how children become engaged with brands and understand what they mean and how their relationship with brands changes over time as they mature as consumers It sets this development against the changes that have occurred in styles of brand promotion in the digital world where more subtle ways of reaching consumers have been developed by brand marketers Children become aware of brands from an early age Even before they start school they can recognise brand names and ask for brands by name The meaning of brands to children can vary dramatically with age As with other aspects of consumer socialisation children s initial orientation towards brands occurs at a superficial level because their level of cognitive development does not allow them to understand deeper seated symbolic meanings of brands Children s understanding of brands and the relationships they have with them may also be influenced by the new promotional techniques developed by marketers Children s recognition of advertisements depends upon being able to identify specific features which signal a persuasive message In the online world of social media and computer games the presence of brands may not be recognized as advertising and so the usual learned defenses against persuasion are not triggered This could place young consumers at a disadvantage This phenomenon has raised important questions for parents educators and marketing regulators and these are addressed in this book through reference to the latest research and writings from around the world
