DIRECTIVES FOR LETTER WRITING ICSE PATTERN

Letter writing is an essential skill which every educated person must acquire for practical reasons. Writing letters is an important tool of communication. We must exercise proper care in mastering this art, for it plays a vital role in fostering good relations with acquaintances, firms, business organizations and people holding important positions in society.

Letters can be broadly categorised into two types –

1. Informal (Personal) Letters 2.

Formal (Business/Official) Letters

They differ in style, format and tone.

Letter Writing in the ICSE examination carries 10 marks. Marks are allocated on Proper Layout, Subject Matter and Expression.

Proper Layout - This is the format in which an informal or a formal letter is written. Care should be taken to adhere to the proper format. Letters should be drafted in neat handwriting and in an organized manner.

Subject Matter (Content) – A letter is written to convey some ideas or information. Therefore, one is judged on how effectively one has tackled the topic. It should be concise, yet relevant to the subject.

Expression – A letter tests one's skill in language/vocabulary. One is advised to observe the basic rules of writing any composition (such as grammar, punctuation and spelling). Provide an interesting introduction and an appropriate conclusion. Divide the letter into paragraphs to mark the change in subject matter and follow a proper sequence.
