Health Promotion At The Community Level New Advances:

Health Promotion at the Community Level Neil F. Bracht, 1999 Like the First Edition this book serves as a guide to the science and art of community health promotion The last decade of research and development has considerably advanced the science of achieving and maintaining health In this new edition international contributors share their experiences and expertise about diverse health promotion and point out areas needing adjustment in community implementation both on an international and domestic level

Health Promotion Jackie Green, Keith Tones, 2010-02-15 Beginning with a critical appraisal of the concept itself the second edition of Health Promotion Planning and Strategies outlines models for defining health promotion and sets out the factors involved in planning health promotion programmes that work Locating the principles and strategies of health promotion within an emerging sphere of multidisciplinary health the authors show how these can be applied within a range of contexts and settings In an attempt to bridge the gap that persists between ideological perspectives and practical implementations they delve beyond the rhetoric of empowerment and show how it can be incorporated into practice Focusing particularly on the synergistic relationship between policy and education the book re appraises the notion of health education an idea which has become marginalised in recent years and shows the fundamental importance of education in creating individual choice and generating effective advocacy for social change The question of evidence is central to the text and the book examines methods of evaluation and the role it plays in creating more effective health promotion programmes The new edition offers coverage of values and ethics working with communities the settings approach and social marketing It also provides students with a glossary of key terms Internationally relevant and multidisciplinary this is an essential text for students of health studies health promotion public health interprofessional social care courses and all healthcare professionals

Health Promotion Keith Tones, Sylvia Tilford, 2001 The authors have joined forces again to reflect upon the ever changing world of health promotion As a result their highly respected textbook has been substantially rewritten to document both theoretical and practical developments within this important sphere of professional activity

Health Promotion at the Community Level Neil Bracht, 1996

Health Promotion at the Community Level Neil F. Bracht, 1990 This timely book offers substantial help to professionals and the general public in their efforts to mobilize community resources for health promotion programmes environmental protection and disease prevention The contributors have experience in field work and offer practical advice on organizing any community wide health programme This will prove a vital resource for anyone involved in promoting health from social workers and health visitors to the ordinary concerned citizen

Public Communication Campaigns Ronald E. Rice, Charles K. Atkin, 2013 In this new fully revised and expanded Fourth Edition Rice and Atkin provide readers with a comprehensive up to date look into the field of public communication campaigns The subject of campaigns has become increasingly high profile in the academic world in the decade since the last edition and hundreds of new studies on campaign theory and practice have been published since 2001 Moreover the rise of new media has expanded the array of strategies for designing and implementing campaigns Largely rewritten to reflect the Integrating Health Promotion and Mental Health Vikki Vandiver,2009 Mental health systems are in a crucial transition period thanks to the increasing prominence of health promotion theory and a corresponding shift toward emphasizing wellness and empowerment holistic and family friendly design and empirically supported treatment Such changes demand adjustments to mental health education and re education to maintain a common ground among students specialists and providers The first book of its kind Integrating Health Promotion and Mental Health presents a seamless framework for approaching contemporary mental health problems In this informative and engaging text healthcare expert Vikki L Vandiver shows how mainstream mental health services can realistically begin to utilize health promotion principles Vandiver begins by approaching the need for mental health reform based on stakeholder perspectives and providing an overview of the history and practice of health promotion leading into a discussion of how health promotion practices can be incorporated into evidence based mental health treatments particularly those for women with co morbid health and mental health conditions and children with mental health needs Finally Vandiver offers an articulate summary and critique that sheds light on how mental health administrators can incorporate health promotion concepts and practices in their organizations in a strategic culturally competent manner Driven by theory and the most recent data Vandiver s writing is also eminently accessible the pages are rich with conceptual diagrams case examples and testimonies from mental health consumers Integrating Health Promotion and Mental Health will help specialists researchers and students alike in fields such as public health nursing social work health psychology psychiatric rehabilitation and counseling to comprehend the basics of health promotion and how they can lead to new and more effective practice models Promoting Health Lee Adams,Mary Amos,James Munro,2002-04-26 A very interesting melange of descriptive material in the form of case studies and more analytical and conceptual pieces covering the broad span of the health and well being agenda Health Matters Promoting Health provides an up to date and accessible introduction to current health promotion and public health developments in the UK The text provides both an outline of health promotion theory and draws on the experience of practitioners to demonstrate health promotion practice and provide students policymakers and practitioners with practical and theoretical inspiration Promoting Health shows clearly the links between health promotion theory and practice by featuring a range of practical case studies includes short papers on key issues within health promotion provides a British focus on health promotion but within an international context This highly accessible volume seeks to present views of health promotion from a materialist perspective a view widely shared in practice but not previously explored fully within the literature Communication Yearbook 28 Pamela J. Kalbfleisch,2004-06-18 Communities are composed of connected individuals The communication that exists within about and between these communities is at the heart of Communication Yearbook 28 This book draws from the broad range encompassed by the communication discipline to review literature that has something to say about community and what the communication discipline has to contribute to understanding this human connection Offering state of the art research Communication Yearbook 28 presents an influence model addressing the most basic level of community the personal relationship the literature on romantic and parent child relationships at a distance community in terms of those working at home and telecommuting running home based businesses and participating in online communities the communicative venue for community building and fragmentation social capital and tolerance the literature on collaboration examining this communicative performance in community groups community as a foundation for the study of public relations theory and practice the visual images of community and what they suggest about these communities to those looking in from the outside the role new technology plays in maintaining community and community contexts This book is an important reference on current research for scholars and students in the social sciences

An Integrated Framework for Assessing the Value of Community-Based Prevention Institute of Medicine, Board on Population Health and Public Health Practice, Committee on Valuing Community-Based, Non-Clinical Prevention Policies and Wellness Strategies, 2012-11-29 During the past century the major causes of morbidity and mortality in the United States have shifted from those related to communicable diseases to those due to chronic diseases Just as the major causes of morbidity and mortality have changed so too has the understanding of health and what makes people healthy or ill Research has documented the importance of the social determinants of health for example socioeconomic status and education that affect health directly as well as through their impact on other health determinants such as risk factors Targeting interventions toward the conditions associated with today s challenges to living a healthy life requires an increased emphasis on the factors that affect the current cause of morbidity and mortality factors such as the social determinants of health Many community based prevention interventions target such conditions Community based prevention interventions offer three distinct strengths First because the intervention is implemented population wide it is inclusive and not dependent on access to a health care system Second by directing strategies at an entire population an intervention can reach individuals at all levels of risk And finally some lifestyle and behavioral risk factors are shaped by conditions not under an individual's control For example encouraging an individual to eat healthy food when none is accessible undermines the potential for successful behavioral change Community based prevention interventions can be designed to affect environmental and social conditions that are out of the reach of clinical services Four foundations the California Endowment the de Beaumont Foundation the W K Kellogg Foundation and the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation asked the Institute of Medicine to convene an expert committee to develop a framework for assessing the value of community based non clinical prevention policies and wellness strategies especially those targeting the prevention of long term chronic diseases The charge to the committee was to define community based non clinical prevention policy and wellness strategies define the value for community based non clinical prevention policies and wellness strategies and analyze current frameworks used to assess the value of community based non clinical prevention policies and wellness strategies including the methodologies and measures used and the short and long term impacts of such prevention policy and wellness strategies on health care spending and public health An Integrated Framework for Assessing the Value of Community Based Prevention summarizes the committee's findings

Dissemination and Implementation of Evidence-Based Psychological Interventions R. Kathryn McHugh, David H. Barlow, 2012-04-17 The lack of widely available effective mental health care presents a major public health problem This volume describes the rapidly expanding area of dissemination and implementation of evidence based psychological interventions Leading efforts internationally to improve access to effective care are highlighted by the leaders of these programs Increased bicycle helmet use in Sweden: needs and possibilities Sixten Nolén, 2017-08-21 Background From the perspective of what is called vision zero in Sweden fatalities and injuries among bicyclists are unacceptable Despite that bicyclists constitutes approximately one third of all road user inpatients in Swedish hospitals which is about the same proportion seen for drivers and passengers of motor vehicles There are too many bicycle related head injuries but the risk of such traumas could be reduced considerably by the use of helmets Bicycle helmet wearing can be increased by voluntary means for instance by long term community based helmet promotion programs However the best effect has been achieved by combining promotion with a compulsory helmet law for all bicyclists as has been done in Australia New Zealand and North America Aim The general aim of the research underlying this dissertation was to provide further information about the need for increased bicycle helmet use in Sweden and to determine what measures can lead to more widespread helmet wearing The four papers included addressed two main questions 1 What is the need for increased helmet wearing among different categories of bicyclists in Sweden 2 Is a non compulsory local bicycle helmet law a realistic alternative to a mandatory helmet law for all bicyclists Materials and methods Observational studies of helmet use by bicyclists in Sweden were conducted once a year average n 37 031 year during the period 1988 2002 paper I The general trend in observed helmet wearing in different categories of bicyclists was analyzed by linear regression and the results were used to predict future trends in helmet wearing. Three studies (papers II-IV) were also performed to evaluate a non-compulsory local bicycle helmet law in Motala municipality during the study period 1995 to 1998 (papers II-IV). This law was introduced in 1996 and applies specifically to school children ages 6-12 years, although the intention is to increase helmet use among all bicyclists. Adoption of the law was accompanied by helmet promotion activities. In one of the studies, written material and in-depth interviews (n=8) were analyzed qualitatively to describe the process and structure of development of the Motala helmet law. The other two studies used a quasi-experimental design to assess the impact of the helmet law: one comprised annual observations of helmet wearing among bicyclists in Motala (average n=2,458) and control areas (average n=17,818), and the other included questionnaire data on attitudes, beliefs, and self-reported behavior of school children in Motala (n=1,277) and control areas (n=2,198). The average response rate was 72.8%.

Results and discussion: There was a significant upward trend in helmet use in all categories of bicyclists from 1988 to 2002. Helmet wearing increased from 20% to 35% among children 10 years riding bikes in their leisure time, from 5% to 33% among school children, and from 2% to 14% in adults. Total average helmet use rose from 4% to 17%. However, during the last five years of the study period (1998-2002), there was no upward trend in helmet wearing for any of the categories of bicyclists. If the historic trend in helmet use continues, the average wearing rate will be about 30% by the year 2010. The Motala helmet law was dogged by several problems, mainly during the initiation phase, and some of them led to poor rooting of the law in the schools and indistinct roles and responsibilities of the municipal actors. Despite that, the law initially led to a significant increase in helmet wearing among the primary target group, school children, from a pre-law level of 65% to about 76% six months post-law, whereas thereafter the wearing rate gradually decreased and was at the pre-law level 2 years after the law was adopted. Nonetheless, a weak but significant effect on adult bicyclists remained: the pre-law level of about 2% rose to about 8% at the end of the study period. Only about 10% of bicyclists on bike paths in Motala wore helmets 2 years post-law. The questionnaire study showed one significant effect on school children in Motala two years post-law, namely a stronger intention to ride bicycles if a national compulsory helmet law was introduced. There was, however, no significant long-term influence on children's attitudes or beliefs about helmet wearing, which agrees with the results of the observational study.

General conclusions: It is indeed necessary to increase bicycle helmet wearing in Sweden. Both the current average rate of helmet use and the rate predicted for the near future are far from the goal of 80% that was officially proposed by several years ago. Previous research has shown that to achieve substantial and sustained bicycle helmet use, it is necessary to use helmet promotion in combination with a national helmet law that is compulsory and applies to all bicyclists. The present evaluation of the non-compulsory local helmet law in Motala indicated that this type of initiative is not a powerful alternative to a mandatory national helmet law. Nevertheless, much has been learned from the initiation and implementation of this local action.
