special sociolinguistic context allows for a unique perspective on some of the central themes of bilingualism research today including the distinction between competence and proficiency modularity and the Poverty of Stimulus problem Francis proposes that competence knowledge should be considered as an integral component of proficiency ability rather than something separate and apart arguing that this approach allows for a more inclusive assessment of research findings from diverse fields of study The bilingual indigenous language project illustrates how the concepts of modularity and the competence proficiency distinction in particular might be applied to problems of language learning and literacy Few investigations of indigenous language and culture approach bilingual research problems from a cognitive science perspective By suggesting connections to broader cognitive and linguistic issues Francis points the way to further research along these lines
