This dual approach ensures that the results are both theoretically sound and practically applicable.

The data collection process involves a series of experiments and simulations, each designed to test a specific aspect of the system's performance. The results of these experiments are then analyzed using statistical methods to identify trends and patterns. This process is repeated for each component of the system, ensuring that all aspects are thoroughly investigated.

The results of the analysis are presented in a clear and concise manner, with each finding supported by relevant data and statistical analysis. The conclusion draws on these results to provide a comprehensive summary of the project's outcomes and to offer practical recommendations for improving the system's performance.

The final section of the document, 'Conclusion', summarizes the findings and offers recommendations for future work. This section is based on the results of the analysis and provides a clear and concise summary of the project's outcomes.
