Scheier,2012-12-06 Seek simplicity and distrust it Alfred North Whitehead It will become all too clear that an ability to see patterns in behavior an ability that some might feel proud of can lead more easily to a wrong description than a right one William T Powers The goal of the theorist the scholar is to take a collection of observations of the world and perceive order in them This process necessarily imposes an artificial simplicity upon those observations That is specific observations are weighed differently from each other whenever a theoretical account is abstracted from raw experiences Some observed events are misunderstood or distorted others are seen as representing random fluctuations and are ignored and yet others are viewed as centrally important This abstraction and oversimplification of reality is inevitable in theory construction Moreover the abstracted vision builds upon itself That is as a structure begins to emerge from continued observation the structure itself guides the search for new information The result is a construction that is more elaborate than what existed before but it still is usually simpler than reality It is important for scholars to believe in the value of their task and in the general correctness of the vision that guides their work This commitment and the hope of progress that follows from it make it possible to continue even when the work is difficult and slow
