Noffsinger,2009-07-21 A Fateful Meeting A year and a half ago I was sitting at a conference listening to Ed Noffsinger speak and suddenly had the most profound Aha moment of my professional career Here was someone presenting a practical and tested solution to some of the most challenging problems currently plaguing the US healthcare system problems such as poor access to primary and specialty care the uncontrollable and rising costs of healthcare our nation's relatively poor quality outcomes and finally the sense of frustration disempowerment loneliness and disenfranchisement that patients and their families too often experience Dr Noffsinger's solution seemed deceptively simple shared medical appointments SMAs that afford the highest quality healthcare to be delivered in the highest quality care experience a group setting Experience collected over a decade and involving more than 100 000 patient visits throughout the United States Canada and parts of Europe has demonstrated that SMAs when used in primary care as well as in the medical and surgical subspecialties lead to increased access to care enhanced quality of care and improved patient satisfaction For physicians the efficiency gains and team support from their participation in SMAs translate into much needed relief and improved career satisfaction

Supply Chain Planning Hans-Otto Günther, Herbert Meyr, 2009-03-05 In recent years supply chain planning has emerged as one of the most challenging problems in the industry As a consequence the planning focus is shifting from the management of plant specific operations to a holistic view of the various logistics and production stages that is an approach in which suppliers production plants and customers are considered as constituents of an integrated network A major driving force behind this development lies in the globalization of the world economy which has facilitated the cooperation between different partners working together in world wide logistics networks Hence considerable cost savings can be gained from optimizing the structure and the operations of complex supply networks linking plants suppliers distribution centres and customers Consequently to improve the performance of the entire logistic chain more sophisticated planning systems and more effective decision support are needed Clearly successful applications of supply chain management have driven the development of advanced planning systems APS which are concerned with supporting decision making activities at the strategic tactical and operational decision level These software packages basically rely on the application of quantitative methods which are used to model the underlying complex decision problems considering the limited availability of resources and the need to react on time to customer orders The core module at the mid term level of APS comprises operational supply chain planning In many industries production stages are assigned to different plants and distribution centres have been established at geographically dispersed locations
