Lennon,2012-12-06 It is a pleasure and an honor to write a foreword for Jennifer Lennon s book Hypermedia

Systems and Applications World Wide Web and Beyond I am fortunate to have been able to follow the development of this book from an excellent Ph D thesis to what I would consider one of the best and most comprehensive books in the area It has a good chance to become a must for teachers researchers and practitioners For the sake of this foreword let us combine the phenomena hypermedia the Internet and the WWW by just calling them the Web Well this Web surely has become one of the super hot topics from both a scholarly and a commercial point of view We have a saying that the Web is like a dog one year s development of the Web corresponds to seven human years You will be familiar with Murphy s law Anything that can go wrong will go wrong and with a plethora of derivatives or specializations thereof like If you are in an otherwise empty locker room the only other person there is bound to have a locker just on top of yours or If traffic is moving slowly you are always going to be in the slowest moving lane and so on Well I have coined a version that applies to the Web Whenever you have understood an important new development concerning the Web you can be sure that it is obsolete Refiguring Techniques in Digital Visual Research Edgar Gómez Cruz, Shanti Sumartojo, Sarah Pink, 2017-08-20 This book interrogates how new digital visual techniques and technologies are being used in emergent configurations of research and intervention It discusses technological change and technological possibility theoretical shifts toward processual paradigms and a respectful ethics of responsibility The contributors explore how new and evolving digital visual technologies and techniques have been utilized in the development of research and reflect on how such theory and practice might advance what is knowable in a world of smartphones drones and 360 degree cameras What can we make of theories of embodiment and the role of the human mirror neuron system? Analía Arevalo, Juliana Baldo, Fernando González-Perilli, Agustín Ibanez, 2016-03-09

In recent years work surrounding theories of embodiment and the role of the putative mirror neuron system MNS in humans has gained considerable attention If humans have developed a network of neurons that fire in response to other beings actions as has been shown in macaques this system could have vast implications for all kinds of cognitive processes unique to humans such as language learning empathy and communication in general The goal of tapping into and understanding such a system is a fascinating yet challenging one One form of embodiment embodied linguistics suggests that the way we process linguistic information is linked to our physical experience of the concept conveyed by each word The interaction between these cognitive systems i.e. language and motor processing may occur thanks to the firing of neurons making up the MNS The possible interdependence between different cognitive systems has implications for healthy as well as pathological profiles and in fact work in recent years has also explored the role of embodiment and or the MNS in clinical populations such as stroke Parkinson s Disease Alzheimer s Disease and Autism among others Research on embodiment and or the MNS has been approached with a number of different methodologies but the results obtained with these different methodologies have not been entirely consistent generating doubts regarding the theories The question has been raised as to what this line of inquiry can gain from the types of evidence contributed by functional neuroimaging methods carried out with healthy volunteers versus behavioral or lesion symptom mapping methods employed with neurologically compromised individuals Of particular interest are the clinical applications of this line of research If indeed a system exists which reflects a tight link between for example the human language and motor systems then the obvious challenge is to tap into this system to create useful therapies that can provide rehabilitation where damage has occurred This Research Topic brought together work conducted with healthy and patient populations using several behavioral and imaging techniques as well as insightful commentaries and opinion pieces We believe the combined work of the participating authors is an important contribution to this intriguing line of research and an excellent point of reference for future work
