

Glory Movie Questions

1. How does the attitude of Colonel Robert Gould Shaw toward African-Americans change and why?

Colonel Shaw's attitude toward African-Americans changes over the course of the movie. At first, he is a white supremacist who believes that African-Americans are inferior and that they should not be allowed to fight in the military. However, as he spends more time with the 54th Massachusetts, he begins to see them as individuals and not just as a race. He becomes more sympathetic toward them and eventually comes to see them as equals.

2. What differences exist among the black soldiers who make up the 54th Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry? What does this tell you about the different experiences of blacks in 19th-century America? What about their regions of origin, former status (enslaved), and educational background?

The 54th Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry is a regiment made up of African-American soldiers from different backgrounds. Some were born free, while others were born into slavery. They come from different parts of the country, including the South, the North, and the West. This diversity of backgrounds and experiences is reflected in the different ways the soldiers interact with each other and with the white officers.

3. What attitudes did white soldiers have about the 54th? Did these attitudes change and why?

At first, the white soldiers in the 54th look down on the African-American soldiers. They see them as inferior and as a threat to their own status. However, as the movie progresses, some of the white soldiers begin to change their attitudes. They begin to see the African-American soldiers as individuals and not just as a race. This change is reflected in the way they interact with the African-American soldiers.

4. Were blacks treated equally to whites in the Union army? Explain.

No, African-American soldiers were not treated equally to white soldiers in the Union army. They were paid less than white soldiers, they were given less food and shelter, and they were often subjected to discrimination and abuse. However, despite these hardships, many African-American soldiers fought bravely and were recognized for their contributions to the war.

5. What is significant about Colonel Shaw's decision to refuse to surrender?

Colonel Shaw's decision to refuse to surrender is significant because it shows that he is willing to die for his principles. He believes that the 54th Massachusetts is a fighting force and that they should be treated as such. He is not willing to let them be disbanded or to let them be treated as a second-class citizen.

6. Did that incident end as you expected? What feelings/oughts does your tell, why?

The incident ended as I expected. I thought that the 54th Massachusetts would be disbanded or that they would be treated as a second-class citizen. However, the movie shows that they were not. They were recognized for their contributions to the war and they were given the same respect and honor as the white soldiers. This was a significant moment in the history of African-American soldiers in the Union army.
