Chapter 26: The Great Wave of Immigration

You and your partner will put together an annotated scrapbook that an immigrant at the turn of the century might have kept. The scrapbook will include biographical information, notes about the journey from the home country, and descriptions of life in the United States. Use your reading notes and the textbook as you make your scrapbook. Your annotated scrapbook must include these five elements:

1. A cover that includes a title and is visually appealing.
2. An introductory page that provides background information on your immigrant, including:
 - a fictitious name, date of birth, and native country
 - a description of the family
 - an explanation of the events or circumstances that prompted this person to immigrate

Find a clever way to present the information, and include at least two visuals.

3. A two-page spread about the journey to the United States that includes:
 - at least one written document such as a letter from a family member living
 - at least two artifacts the immigrant used on the journey to the United States, such as a passport, a ticket for the trip to the United States, or notes from the home country. Each artifact must have a short caption that explains what the item is and how it was used.
 - at least two visuals, such as a simple sketch or a historical photograph, that show something that happened on the journey to the United States. Each visual must have a short caption.
4. A two-page spread about the immigrant's experiences upon arrival in the the United States that includes:
 - at least one written document, such as a letter the immigrant wrote to family or friends in the home country or an entry from a personal journal
 - at least two artifacts the immigrant used upon arrival in the United States, such as a paycheck or a page from an English dictionary. Each artifact must have a short caption that identifies what the item is and explains how it was used
 - at least two visuals, such as a simple sketch or a historical photograph, that represent the immigrant's new life in the United States. Each visual must have a short caption.

5. Creative touches that make your scrapbook more authentic.
