

Lab 7 Activity: Waves

In this laboratory you will learn about wave characteristics, including the propagation of a wave, and understand your answers to the questions asked in this laboratory under the direction of your Lab Partner(s).

Exercise 1: Wave Characteristics

Waves are disturbances traveling through mediums (or propagating) over the medium and generally transport energy that travels over distances through time (i.e., propagating) in air (e.g., light) and water (mechanical) disturbances that travel over the water. In this activity, you will learn about the characteristics of a wave, including its frequency, period, and wavelength.

In class, we tried water's propagation. I found that the wave has some characteristics that are different from the water's propagation. I found that the wave has some characteristics that are different from the water's propagation.
