

Glory Movie Questions

1. How does the attitude of Colonel Robert Gould Shaw toward African-Americans change and why?

Colonel Shaw's attitude toward African-Americans changes over the course of the movie. At first, he is a white supremacist who believes that African-Americans are inferior and that they should not be allowed to fight in the military. However, as he spends more time with the 54th Massachusetts, he begins to see them as individuals and not just as a race. He becomes more sympathetic toward them and eventually comes to see them as equals.

2. What differences exist among the black soldiers who make up the 54th Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry? What does this tell you about the different experiences of blacks in 19th-century America? What about their regions of origin, former status (enslaved), and educational background?

The 54th Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry is a regiment made up of African-American soldiers from different backgrounds. Some were born free, while others were born into slavery. They come from different parts of the country, including the South, the North, and the West. This diversity reflects the different experiences of blacks in 19th-century America.

3. What attitudes did white soldiers have about the 54th? Did these attitudes change and why?

At first, the white soldiers in the 54th have a variety of attitudes toward the African-American soldiers. Some see them as equals, while others see them as inferior. However, as the movie progresses, the white soldiers begin to see the African-American soldiers as individuals and not just as a race. Their attitudes change as they learn more about them.

4. Were blacks treated equally to whites in the Union army? Explain.

No, blacks were not treated equally to whites in the Union army. They were paid less than whites, they were given less food and shelter, and they were often treated with disrespect. However, they were given the same training and fought the same battles as the white soldiers.

5. What is significant about Colonel Shaw's decision to refuse to surrender?

Colonel Shaw's decision to refuse to surrender is significant because it shows that he is willing to die for his principles. He believes that the African-American soldiers are worthy of the same respect and treatment as the white soldiers, and he is willing to fight for that belief.

6. Did that incident end as you expected? What feelings or thoughts come over you last night?

The incident ended as I expected. I thought that the African-American soldiers would be killed, but they were not. I was surprised that they were able to hold out for so long. I was also impressed by the bravery of the white soldiers who fought alongside them. I was moved by the story and the sacrifices that were made.
