Office of the Chief of Naval Operations, United States. Department of the Navy. Bureau of Aeronautics, 1959 The Survival Officer and the Flight Surgeon have the difficult and complex job of obtaining handling and even maintaining a wide variety of safety and survival equipment They have a job weighted with responsibility for men s lives may depend on their thoroughness and efficiency It is imperative therefore that they be fully informed about the equipment and that they keep abreast of all the latest developments This manual has been prepared to help them in this task It is not intended as a means of providing complete instruction in the use of safety and survival equipment It is rather a training guide with general but comprehensive coverage of the various items of safety and survival equipment In addition the writeups for most items list some technical features In some instances more space has been devoted to certain equipment than to others Actually there is no way of gaging the relative importance of one piece of equipment over the others For example in some cases a simple flashlight might prove more important than something as complex as an oxygen system Therefore the length of the discussion depends more on the complexity of the equipment than its importance In other cases where information is readily available as in the case of instructions attached to the equipment itself the information given here is abbreviated Preface
