

ENDOCRINE SYSTEM

Endocrine System: WORKING TOGETHER

Each organ system works on other systems within the body to do its "job". Our bodies learn just some of the ways that the endocrine system interacts with other organ systems.

Nervous System

Circulatory System

Endocrine System: FACTS

Endocrine System: PROBLEMS

Most of the time, the endocrine system works perfectly well. However, sometimes problems can arise.

Diabetes

Diabetes is a condition that causes high blood glucose (sugar) levels. It is caused by the body being unable to either produce or use the hormone insulin. So, the glucose in blood sugar gets stuck in the blood. Symptoms include increased thirst, weight gain, changes in vision, increased weight changes, persistent sores, numbness or tingling in the hands.

Endocrine System: KEY TERMS

Term	Definition
Endocrine System	Network of endocrine glands that make, store, and release hormones.
Hormones	Chemical messengers that carry information and instructions from one cell to another.

Endocrine System: HORMONES

Hormones are chemical signals. Hormones are released by a gland and travel in the blood to a receptor. The receptor binds to the hormone and sends a signal to a target cell. This causes the target cell to perform a specific function.

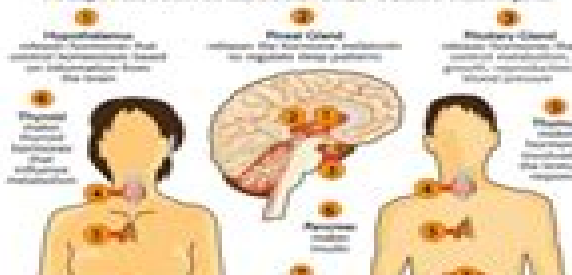

Endocrine System: FIGHT-OR-FLIGHT

The fight-or-flight response is a reaction that occurs in the body when we are really frightened. The brain (specifically the hypothalamus) sends out signals to the adrenal glands. The adrenal glands release hormones that prepare the body to either fight or flee. These hormones increase heart rate, blood pressure, and blood sugar levels. They also cause the pupils to dilate and the lungs to take in more oxygen. In other words, the body is prepared to deal with the danger.

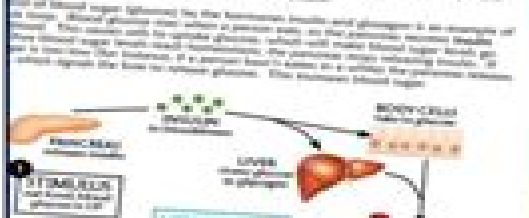

Endocrine System: GLANDS

A gland is a structure that produces and releases substances that perform a specific function in the body. There are two types of glands: exocrine glands and endocrine glands. Exocrine glands release substances into a duct, which then carries them to the target organ. Endocrine glands release substances directly into the bloodstream. The endocrine system is a network of glands that produce and release hormones. These hormones travel through the blood to target organs and cells, where they perform their functions.

Endocrine System: FEEDBACK LOOPS

Endocrine activities are regulated by complex feedback loops. These feedback loops help the body maintain a stable internal environment. When a hormone level rises, it triggers a response that lowers the level. When a hormone level falls, it triggers a response that raises the level. This process is called a feedback loop. The most common type of feedback loop is the negative feedback loop. In a negative feedback loop, the hormone level rises, which triggers a response that lowers the level. This process continues until the hormone level returns to normal.
