Wellness Tourism Cornelia Voigt, Christof Pforr, 2013-11-20 Core values of society health and wellbeing impact today on all aspects of our lives and have also increasingly influenced patterns of tourism consumption and production In this context wellness has developed into a significant dimension of tourism in a number of new and long established destinations However although it is consistently referred to as one of the most rapidly growing forms of tourism worldwide there still remains a dearth of academic literature on this topic This book uniquely focuses on the supply side of wellness tourism from a destination perspective in terms of the generation and delivery of products and services for tourists who seek to maintain and improve their health This approach provides a better understanding of how wellness tourism destinations develop and explores the specific drivers of that growth in a destination context and how destinations successfully compete against each other in globalised market place A range of wellness destination development and management issues are examined including the importance of authenticity an appropriate policy framework delivery of high quality goods and services participation of a broad range of stakeholders and the development of networks and clusters as well as collaborative strategies essential for a successful development and management of a wellness tourism destination International case studies and examples from established and new wellness tourism destinations are integrated throughout This timely volume written by leaders in this sector will be of interest to tourism and hospitality students and academics internationally

Management of Technology and Innovation in Japan Cornelius Herstatt, Christoph Stockstrom, Hugo Tschirky, Akio Nagahira, 2006-02-23 What Makes this Book Unique No crystal ball is required to safely predict that in the future even more than in the past mastered innovativeness will be a primary criterion distinguishing successful from unsuccessful companies At the latest since Michael Porter's study on the competitiveness of nations the same criterion holds even for the evaluation of entire countries and national economies Despite the innumerable number of publications and recommendations on innovation competitive innovativeness is still a rare competency The latest publication of UNICE the European Industry organization representing 20 million large midsize and small companies speaks a clear language Europe qualifies to roughly 60% 70% of the innovation strength of the US Japan The record unemployment in many EU countries does not contradict this message A main reason may be given by the fact that becoming an innovative organization means increased openness towards the new and more tolerance towards risks and failures both challenging the inherently difficult management art of cultural change Further lacking innovativeness is often related to legal and fiscal barriers which rather hinder than foster innovative activities Yet another reason to explain Europe's notorious innovation gap refers to insufficient financial R D resources on the company as well as on the national level As a result for example hi ranking decisions on the level of the European Commission are taken to increase R D expenditures in the European Union from roughly 2% to 3% of GNP

Corporate Strategic Management in practice Patrick Siegfried, 2017-07-07 These Case Studies were written from students at the International School of Management in Frankfurt The students have visited the lecture Corporate Management Strategic Management and Corporate Governance In this book Case studies from four different companies will be presented The development of their enterprises the position in the market and the strategies Prof Dr Patrick Siegfried Ph D has worked with the students He has the professorship for General Management at the International School of Management

Synergies Created by a Strategic Fit between Business and Human Resource Strategies Wilson J. Osito Odiyo, 2013-07-26 This text is an important addition to the ongoing discourse on strategic management particularly strategic human resource management It is a result of research carried out in the agricultural sector in general and on multinational tea firms in particular The author's hands on and conceptual insights gained through nineteen years of experience across African countries make the text a useful tool for company boards of directors and strategic level managers charged with the formulation and implementation of business and human resource strategies In addition it provides justification to HR managers of the need to shift focus from primarily being concerned with routine transactional HR activities to dealing with transformational ones which are contingent on the circumstances of the organization Scholars management consultants and management students will also find the contents of this book to be of great interest and benefit It is now sufficiently recognised that management has to be concerned with deliverables rather than abstractions Therefore many firms formulate and implement one form of business strategy or the other However strategies cannot be conceived let alone realised without human resource input The question that HR continues to grapple with therefore is how it can demonstrate the contribution of each employee to the bottom line and business sustainability How this question is to be answered has not always been explained and is even more crucial for the agricultural firms which are characterized by great instability in terms of weather patterns commodity prices currency exchange rates and wage levels HR planning in these circumstances cannot be a simple exercise but getting it right is more important than for organizations in more predictable environments This book moves away from the romanticization of the role of HRM in such organizations and instead provides empirical evidence of the types of business and human resource strategies employed strategic integration between these strategies and the strategic human resource management processes and practices used Finally it considers the concomitant synergies achieved by strategic fit between business and human resource strategies and their role in achieving sustainable competitive advantage

Media Product Portfolios Robert G. Picard, 2014-04-08 Media product portfolios are rapidly becoming the predominant shared characteristic of media companies worldwide The phenomenon involves firms from all kinds of media newspapers magazines television radio cinema and is found in enterprises ranging from small local firms to large globalized companies This volume is the result of a coordinated effort of scholars in the United States and Europe to explore the characteristics processes challenges and implications of media product portfolios This book breaks new ground by introducing the concepts of product portfolio management and applying them to media companies in a comprehensive manner It draws from knowledge and methods of analyzing product portfolio management in other industries applies that knowledge to media industries and analyzes current practices in media firms The process and issues of portfolio strategy development and management are complex and wide ranging The book explores the development of media product portfolios from an interdisciplinary perspective providing insight from business economic organizational and communication approaches The book explores why and how firms develop portfolios how company strategy and organizational development relate to portfolios the role of leaders in developing portfolio activities economic and economic geography issues in portfolios production issues challenges in managing multiple products and operations issues of marketing and branding issues in portfolios personnel implications and the unique challenges in the internationalization of media portfolio operations
