Charles Darwin - On the Origin of Species by Means of Natural Selection, 1859.

What was before Darwin?

Aristotle -

Jean-Baptiste de Lamarck, 1800s

Refinement of traits, organisms successful in environment

Change over time, but

Charles Darwin and The Origin of Species

proposed a hypothesis, evidence

Five-year voyage on the HMS Beagle -

Naturalist - collected thousands of specimens and observed various adaptations in organisms

New Insights

Darwin was strongly influenced by the writings of geologist Charles Lyell.

Lyell suggested that Earth is Thus, extended time scale allowing gradual changes to occur in species and in geologic features

Darwin returns to England

Gathers data and comes up with:

"descent with modification"

Proposes a mechanism - natural selection.

In natural selection, individuals with certain inherited traits are

Evolution: Darwin's Theory

Alfred Russell Wallace

Worked in Indonesia

mid 1850's, developed similar ideas to Darwin

Presented to the scientific community

Soon after Darwin publishes On the Origin of Species by Means of Natural Selection

Controversial

More than just a hypothesis, theory

Verified by more than 150 years of research.

Darwin publishes On the Origin of Species by Means of Natural Selection, making two proposals:

1. Existing species descended from
2. Natural selection is

Evolution - Genetic change in a population or species over generations

Population -

Living species are descendants of ancestral species that were different from present-day ones.

Evidence of Evolution

Biological evolution has left evidence:

Evidence from Fossils

Fossils - imprints or remains of organisms that lived in the past

Sedimentary rock

Paleontologists -

Not all fossils are the actual remnants of organisms.

Sometimes, an entire organism is preserved

Amber, Frozen in ice, Preserved in bogs increasing human domination of the Earth's biological and physical resources a basic understanding of ecology is more important than ever. Students need a textbook that introduces them to the basic principles of ecological science, one that is relevant to today's world and one that does not overwhelm them with detail and jargon. Peter Cotgreave and Irwin Forseth have designed this book to meet the needs of these students by providing a basic synthesis of how individual organisms interact with their physical environment and with each other to generate the complex ecosystems we see around us. The unifying theme of the book is biodiversity: its patterns, causes, and the growing worldwide threats to it. Basic ecological principles are illustrated using clearly described examples from the current ecological literature. This approach makes the book valuable to all students studying ecology. Examples have been chosen carefully to represent as wide a range of ecosystems: terrestrial and aquatic, northern and southern hemisphere, and life forms: animal, plant, and microbe, as possible. Particular attention is paid to consequences of global change on organisms, populations, ecological communities, and ecosystems. The end result is a text that presents a readable and persuasive picture of how the Earth's natural systems function and how that functioning may change over the coming century. Features include strong coverage of applied and evolutionary ecology; applications of ecology to the real world; a question-oriented approach; the only comprehensive treatment of ecology written for the introductory student; an emphasis on definitions of key words and phrases; an integration of experimental, observational, and theoretical material; examples drawn from all over the world; and a wide variety of organisms. A logical structure, building from the response of individual organisms to physical factors through population growth and population interactions to community structure and ecosystem function, is suggested. Further reading lists for each chapter, boxes to explain key concepts in more depth, a dedicated website featuring additional information, and teaching aids are included.
