Fleet Owner, 1984 Computer-Assisted Management and Control of Manufacturing Systems Spyros G.

Tzafestas, 2012-12-06 Modern manufacturing systems involve many processes and operations that can be monitored and controlled at several levels of intelligence. At the highest level there is a computer that supervises the various manufacturing functions whereas at the lowest level there are stand alone computer controlled systems of manufacturing processes and robotic cells. Until recently computer aided manufacturing systems constituted isolated islands of automation each oriented to a particular application but present day systems offer integrated approaches to manufacturing and enterprise operations. These modern systems known as computer integrated manufacturing CIM systems can easily meet the current performance and manufacturing competitiveness requirements under strong environmental changes. CIM systems are much of a challenge and imply a systemic approach to the design and operation of a manufacturing enterprise. Actually a CIM system must take into account in a unified way the following three views: the user view, the technology view and the enterprise view. This means that CIM includes both the engineering and enterprise planning and control activities as well as the information flow activities across all the stages of the system.

Automated Systems in the Aviation and Aerospace Industries Shmelova, Tetiana, Sikirda, Yuliya, Rizun, Nina, Kucherov, Dmytro, Dergachov, Konstantin, 2019-03-22. Air traffic controllers need advanced information and automated systems to provide a safe environment for everyone traveling by plane. One of the primary challenges in developing training for automated systems is to determine how much a trainee will need to know about the underlying technologies to use automation safely and efficiently. To ensure safety and success task analysis techniques should be used as the basis of the design for training in automated systems in the aviation and aerospace industries. Automated Systems in the Aviation and Aerospace Industries is a pivotal reference source that provides vital research on the application of underlying technologies used to enforce automation safety and efficiency. While highlighting topics such as expert systems, text mining and human machine interface, this publication explores the concept of constructing navigation algorithms based on the use of video information and the methods of the estimation of the availability and accuracy parameters of satellite navigation. This book is ideal for aviation professionals, researchers and managers seeking current research on information technology used to reduce
