Good Humor, Bad Taste Giseline Kuipers, 2011-12-22 Good Humor Bad Taste is the first extensive sociological study of the relationship between humor and social background Using a combination of interview materials survey data and historical materials the book explores the relationship between humor and gender age regional background and especially humor and social class in the Netherlands The final chapter focuses on national differences exploring the differences between the American and the Dutch sense of humor again using a combination of interview and survey materials The starting point for this exploration of differences in sense of humor is one specific humorous genre the joke The joke is not a very prestigious genre in the Netherlands even less so than in the US It is precisely this lack of status that made it a good starting point for asking questions about humor and taste Interviewees generally had very pronounced opinions about the genre calling jokes their favorite kind humor but also completely devoid of humor and a form of intellectual poverty Good Humor Bad Taste attempts to explain why jokes are good humor to some bad taste to others The focus on this one genre enables Good Humor Bad Taste to have a very wide scope The book not only covers the appreciation and evaluation of jokes by different social groups and in different cultures and its relationship with wider humor styles It also describes the genre itself the history of the genre its decline in status from the sixteenth century onward and the way the topics and the tone of jokes have changed over the last fifty years of the twentieth century

A National Joke Andy Medhurst,2007-09-18 Comedy is crucial to how the English see themselves This book considers that proposition through a series of case studies of popular English comedies and comedians in the twentieth century ranging from the Carry On films to the work of Mike Leigh and contemporary sitcoms such as The Royle Family and from George Formby to Alan Bennett and Roy Chubby Brown Relating comic traditions to questions of class gender sexuality and geography A National Joke looks at how comedy is a cultural thermometer taking the temperature of its times It asks why vulgarity has always delighted English audiences why camp is such a strong thread in English humour why class influences what we laugh at and why comedy has been so neglected in most theoretical writing about cultural identity Part history and part polemic it argues that the English urgently need to reflect on who they are who they have been and who they might become and insists that comedy offers a particularly illuminating location for undertaking those reflections

,1929 Folk Culture in the Digital Age Trevor J. Blank,2012-11-16 Smart phones tablets Facebook Twitter and wireless

Internet connections are the latest technologies to have become entrenched in our culture. Although traditionalists have argued that computer mediated communication and cyberspace are incongruent with the study of folklore, Trevor J. Blank sees the digital world as fully capable of generating, transmitting, performing, and archiving vernacular culture. Folklore in the Digital Age documents the emergent cultural scenes and expressive folkloric communications made possible by digital new media technologies. New media is changing the ways in which people learn, share, participate, and engage with others as they adopt technologies to complement and supplement traditional means of vernacular expression. But behavioral and structural overlap in many folkloric forms exists between on and offline, and emerging patterns in digital rhetoric mimic the dynamics of previously documented folkloric forms invoking familiar social or behavior customs, linguistic inflections, and symbolic gestures. Folklore in the Digital Age provides insights and perspectives on the myriad ways in which folk culture manifests in the digital age and contributes to our greater understanding of vernacular expression in our ever-changing technological world.

The Outlook Lyman Abbott, Hamilton Wright Mabie, Ernest Hamlin Abbott, Francis Rufus Bellamy, 1927 Create Captivating Classes J. Christopher Bontjes, 2013-10-08

It's a challenge every teacher faces: finding ways to get and keep the attention of their students, getting them to engage fully in the lessons. In today's world of constant connection to media and entertainment through television and the Internet, it is harder than ever. Add to that the pressures of NCLB Common Core State Standards and the Danielson evaluation model putting full responsibility for student learning and growth on the teacher, and we have reached a crisis. How can teachers compete with this constant stream of personalized entertainment? They must learn to think and teach as entertainers. This is not as revolutionary a concept as it may sound. The word "entertain" is defined as to pleasantly hold attention. So teachers already entertain their students. So no problem, right? Wrong. Teachers are now competing for the attention of their students. And the competition is fierce. They are up against professional entertainers who have spent years studying the art of entertainment without having to worry about teaching as well. Teachers are trained in their subjects but not in the methods and techniques used by entertainment professionals. Teachers must learn to plan and to think as the professional entertainers do. Only then can they effectively compete. Only then can they create Captivating Classes.

Christopher Bontjes has more than 40 years of experience in designing shows and entertaining audiences of all ages from the stage. He also has more than 25 years of experience as a classroom teacher. Because his teaching specialty is music, he has had the opportunity to teach students ranging in age from Kindergarten through adult. In Create Captivating Classes, Why NCLB Should Mean No Child Left Bored, Bontjes shares the techniques used by entertainment professionals to keep audiences glued to their seats and begging for more. He then applies each technique to the classroom, showing teachers step by step how to use each idea in the classroom to keep students riveted to lessons and anxious to learn more. These ideas and techniques are effective with all students. They work regardless of age or socio-economic background. They work not because of who students are but because of what students are: HUMAN. Every teacher
