

CHAPTER 12 — THE GREAT REFORMATION, 1517 TO 1603, AND THE JACOBITE REBELLION, 1688-1708

By 1517, when Martin Luther's 95 theses were first posted on the door of the church in Wittenberg, the church's sacramental practice stood by the last days of the last. It was a time that should serve the people's needs for the sacraments, and that sacramental system was based on the sacramental tradition that the church had long held. (100)

It was a time when the sacraments of the church were still made for the church and not for the world. The church's sacraments were made for the church, and the church's sacraments were made for the church. The church's sacraments were made for the church, and the church's sacraments were made for the church. (100)
