The Mayflower Compact was a document during periods of self-government for sailing ships. The 1 st Continental Congress of 1774 was the first national assembly of the colonies (1774).	Articles of Confederation 1781	A written plan of government for the colonies created a weak federal government of 13 loosely independent states. Other governments followed quickly in creating their own state constitutions. By 1780, the 13 states had their own constitutions. It is the United States Constitution (signed) that set up the structure of government under the Constitution as a government based on the separation of powers. It is based on the idea of government and the federal (national) government and state (local) government. The Constitution established a representative democracy with three branches of government: legislative, executive, and judicial.

Bill of Rights 1791	The Bill of Rights consists of the first ten amendments (changes) to the Constitution. These amendments protect individual rights and set the limits of the power of the federal government. The Bill of Rights was written by James Madison and is the first of the Constitution to be added to the original text. The Constitution was the original document that set the structure of the government and the rights of the people.
Declaration of Independence 1776	Declared the American colonies separate from England, indicating independence. The document was signed in 1776 and was written by the Continental Congress. It declared the rights of the colonies and the right of the people to govern themselves. It also declared the rights of the people to govern themselves and the right of the people to govern themselves. It also declared the rights of the people to govern themselves and the right of the people to govern themselves.
