Madson, 2021-11-11 This collection provides a research based guide to instructional practices for writing in the health professions promoting faculty development and bringing together perspectives from writing studies technical communication and health humanities With employment in health care sectors booming writing instruction tailored for the health professions is in high demand Writing instruction is critical in the health professions because health professionals current and aspiring need to communicate persuasively with patients peers mentors and others Writing instruction can also help cultivate professional identity reflective practice empathy critical thinking confidence and organization as well as research skills This collection prepares faculty and administrators to meet this demand It combines conceptual development of writing for the health professions as an emergent interdisciplinary with evidence based practices for instructors in academic clinical and community settings Teaching Writing in the Health Professions is an essential resource for instructors scholars and program administrators in health disciplines professional and technical communication health humanities and interdisciplinary writing studies It informs the teaching of writing in programs in medicine nursing pharmacy and allied health public health and other related professions Assessing the Teaching of Writing Amy E. Dayton, 2015-03-15 Although fraught with politics and other perils teacher evaluation can contribute in important positive ways to faculty development at both the individual and the departmental levels Yet the logistics of creating a valid assessment are complicated Inconsistent methods rater bias and overreliance on student evaluation forms have proven problematic The essays in Assessing the Teaching of Writing demonstrate constructive ways of evaluating teacher performance taking into consideration the immense number of variables involved Contributors to the volume examine a range of fundamental issues including the political context of declining state funds in education growing public critique of the professoriate and demands for accountability resulting from federal policy initiatives like No Child Left Behind the increasing sophistication of assessment methods and technologies and the continuing interest in the scholarship of teaching The first section addresses concerns and advances in assessment methodologies and the second takes a closer look at unique individual sites and models of assessment Chapters collectively argue for viewing teacher assessment as a rhetorical practice Fostering new ways of thinking about teacher evaluation Assessing the Teaching of Writing will be of great interest not only to writing program administrators but also to those concerned with faculty development and teacher assessment outside the writing program The McGraw-Hill Guide: Writing for College, Provocations of Virtue John Duffy, 2019-03-01 In Provocations of Virtue John Duffy explores the indispensable role of writing teachers and scholars in counteracting the polarized venomous post truth character of contemporary public argument Teachers of writing are uniquely positioned to address the crisis of public discourse because their work in the writing classroom is tied to the teaching of ethical language practices that are known to moral philosophers as the virtues truthfulness accountability open mindedness generosity and intellectual courage Drawing upon Aristotle's Nicomachean Ethics and the branch of philosophical inquiry known as virtue ethics Provocations of Virtue calls for the reclamation of rhetorical virtues as a core function in the writing classroom Duffy considers what these virtues actually are how they might be taught and whether they can prepare students to begin repairing the broken state of public argument In the discourse of the virtues teachers and scholars of writing are offered a common language and a shared narrative a story that speaks to the inherent purpose of the writing class and to what is at stake in teaching writing in the twenty first century This book is a timely and historically significant contribution to the field and will be of major interest to scholars and administrators in writing studies rhetoric composition and linguistics as well as philosophers and those exploring ethics

Conceding Composition Ryan Skinnell, 2016-09-01 First year composition became the most common course in American higher education not because it could fix underprepared student writers but because it has historically served significant institutional interests That is it can be conceded in multiple ways to help institutions solve political promotional and financial problems Conceding Composition is a wide ranging historical examination of composition's evolving institutional value in American higher education over the course of nearly a century Based on extensive archival research conducted at six American universities and using the specific cases of institutional mission regional accreditation and federal funding this study demonstrates that administrators and faculty have introduced reformed maintained threatened or eliminated composition as part of negotiations related to nondisciplinary institutional exigencies Viewing composition from this perspective author Ryan Skinnell raises new questions about why composition exists in the university how it exists and how teachers and scholars might productively reconceive first year composition in light of its institutional functions The book considers the rhetorical political organizational institutional and promotional options conceding composition opened up for institutions of higher education and considers what the first year course and the discipline might look like with composition's transience reimagined not as a barrier but as a consummate institutional value
