Bauer, Alexandra Böhm, Micha Gerrit Philipp Edlich, Greta Gaard, Björn Hayer, Andreas Hübner, Michaela Keck, Maria Moss, Jobst Paul, Mieke Roscher, Pamela Steen, Nils Steffensen, 2022-06-14 In light of the dramatic growth and rapid institutionalization of human animal studies in recent years it is somewhat surprising that only a small number of

publications have proposed practical and theoretical approaches to teaching in this inter and transdisciplinary field. Featuring eleven original pedagogical interventions from the social sciences and the humanities as well as an epilogue from ecofeminist critic Greta Gaard, the present volume addresses this gap and responds to the demand by both educators and students for pedagogies appropriate for dealing with environmental crises. The theoretical and practical contributions collected here describe new ways of teaching human animal studies in different educational settings and institutional contexts, suggesting how learners equipped with key concepts such as agency or relationality can develop empathy and ethical regard for the more-than-human world and especially nonhuman animals. As the contributors to this volume show, these cognitive and affective goals can be achieved in many curricula in secondary and tertiary education. By providing learners with the tools to challenge human exceptionalism in its various guises and related patterns of domination and exploitation in and outside the classroom, these interventions also contribute to a much-needed transformation not only of today's educational systems but of society as a whole. This volume is an invitation to beginners and experienced instructors alike: an invitation to reconsider how we teach human animal studies and how we could and should prepare learners for an uncertain future in ideally a more egalitarian and just multispecies world. With contributions by Roman Bartosch, Liza B. Bauer, Alexandra B. H. Michä, Gerrit Philipp Edlich, Greta Gaard, Björn Hayer, Andreas H. B. Michaela, Keck Maria, Moss, Jobst Paul, Mieke Roscher, Pamela Steen, and Nils Steffensen.

How It Ends: From You to the Universe Chris Impey, 2011-04-11. Remarkably upbeat and imbued with wit, wisdom, and a palpable sense of awe over our universe. Tucson Weekly. Most of us are aware of our own mortality, but few among us know what science with insights yielded from groundbreaking new research has to say about endings on a larger scale. Enter astronomer Chris Impey, who chronicles the death of the whole shebang: individual species, biosphere, Earth, Sun, Milky Way, and finally the entire universe. With a healthy dose of humor, How It Ends illuminates everything from the technologies of human life extension and the evolutionary arms race between microbes and men to the inescapable dimming of the Sun and the ultimate big rip, giving us a rare glimpse into a universe without us. Talking the Talk Trevor A. Harley, 2017-02-02. Talking the Talk provides a comprehensive introduction to the psychology of language, written for the reader with no background in the field or any prior knowledge of psychology. Written in an accessible and friendly style, the book answers the questions people actually have about language: how do we speak, listen, read, and learn language? The book advocates an experimental approach, explaining how psychologists can use experiments to build models of language processing. Considering the full breadth of psycholinguistics, the book covers core topics including how children acquire language, how language is related to the brain, and what can go wrong with it. Fully updated throughout, this edition also includes additional coverage on the genetics of language, insight into potential cognitive advantages of bilingualism, new content on brain imaging and neuroscience, increased emphasis on recursion, and what is special about language. Talking the Talk is written in an engaging style which does not hesitate to explain complex concepts. It is essential reading for all.

form of scholarly edgework resisting institutional divisions and conceptual routines in the interest of exploring new modalities of anthropological knowledge making The present interest in the natural world is partly a response to large scale natural disasters and global climate change and to a keen sense that nature matters matters to society at many levels ranging from the microbiological and genetic framing of reproduction over co species development to macro ecological changes of weather and climate Given that the human footprint is now conspicuous across the entire globe in the oceans as well as in the atmosphere it is difficult to claim that nature is what is given and permanent while people and societies are ephemeral and simply derivative features This implies that society matters to nature and some natural scientists look towards the social sciences for an understanding of how people think and how societies work The book thus opens up a space for new forms of reflection on how natures and societies are generated interpretation and management the worst highlight the manipulation of animals for human gratification Taking a global approach this book examines the problems and paradoxes of zoos as they try to balance their roles as visitor attractions while repositioning themselves as leading conservation agencies This book provides a detailed and critical examination of the conflicting roles and identities of the modern zoo from a tourism perspective and as such reminds us that zoos are as much about the people who visit them as about the animals that they display At a time when they are under continual critical scrutiny this book delivers a fresh approach to our understanding and appreciation of zoos and of the challenges and opportunities that they face as they strive to remain relevant within modern society Andrew Tribe University of Queensland Australia
