Financing Higher Education N. A. Barr, 2004 The Financing of American Higher Education, 1984 Public Funding of Higher Education Edward P. St. John, Michael D. Parsons, 2005-09-23 Much of the twentieth century saw broad political support for public funding of American higher education Liberals supported public investment because it encouraged social equity conservatives because it promoted economic development Recently however the politics of higher education have become more contentious Conservatives advocate deep cuts in public financing liberals want to expand enrollment and increase diversity Some public universities have embraced privatization while federal aid for students increasingly emphasizes middle class affordability over universal access In Public Funding of Higher Education scholars and practitioners address the complexities of this new climate and its impact on policy and political advocacy at the federal state and institutional levels Rethinking traditional rationales for public financing contributors to this volume offer alternatives for policymakers administrators faculty students and researchers struggling with this difficult practical dynamic Contributors M Christopher Brown II Pennsylvania State University Jason L Butler University of Illinois Choong Geun Ching Indiana University Clifton F Conrad University of Wisconsin Madison Saran Donahoo University of Illinois James Farmer JA SIG uPortal James C Hearn Vanderbilt University Janet M Holdsworth University of Minnesota Don Hossler Indiana University John R Thelin University of Kentucky Mary Louise Trammell University of Arizona David J Weerts University of Wisconsin Madison William Zumeta University of Washington Financing Higher Education in the 21st Century, 1993 The Finance of Higher Education Michael B. Paulsen, John C. Smart, 2001 A wide ranging examination of the governmental and institutional policies and practices and essential theories and areas of research that in combination establish the foundation explore and extend the boundaries and expand the base of knowledge in the Financing Higher Education Worldwide D. Bruce Johnstone, Pamela N. Marcucci, 2010-06-07 Examines the universal phenomenon of cost sharing in higher education where financial responsibility shifts from governments and taxpayers to students and families Growing costs for education far outpace public revenue streams that once supported it Even with financial aid and scholarships defraying some of these costs students are responsible for a greater share of the cost of higher education Shows how economically diverse countries all face similar cost sharing challenges While cost sharing is both politically and ideologically debated it is imperative to implement it for the financial health of colleges and universities From publisher description Financing higher education, 1990 Financing Higher Education Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development, 1990 The nature of the changes in the patterns of financing and control of higher education systems which have been observed in the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development OECD countries over the last decade are discussed In particular the report analyzes the links between expenditure patterns costs and efficiency in higher education in relation to the mechanisms by which institutions receive funds and examines these areas against the background of changing policies for public financing

The report draws extensively on a series of country case studies prepared specifically for the analysis. The first chapter provides background information and discusses models and concepts. Additional chapters examine the following areas: 1 the existing arrangements and recent trends in the funding of higher education institutions in the studied OECD countries; 2 the variety of schemes of student financial support in the OECD member countries taking part in the study; 3 funding mechanisms and the functions of higher education institutions; and 4 future prospect and policy implications based on current observations. Contains six tables of analytical data and a resource list of national reports.

GLR Student Financing of Higher Education Donald Heller, Claire Callender, 2013-06-07. The financing of higher education is undergoing great change in many countries around the world. In recent years many countries are moving from a system where the costs of funding higher education are shouldered primarily by taxpayers through government subsidies to one where students pay a larger share of the costs. There are a number of factors driving these trends including: A push for massification of higher education in the recognition that additional revenue streams are required above and beyond those funds available from governments in order to achieve higher participation rates; Macroeconomic factors which lead to constraints on overall government revenues; Political factors which manifest in demands for funding of over services thus restricting the funding available for higher tertiary education; A concern that the returns to higher education accrue primarily to the individual rather than to society and thus students should bear more of the burden of paying for it. This volume will help to contribute to an understanding of how these trends occur in various countries and regions around the world and the impact they have on higher education institutions, students and society as a whole. With contributions for the UK, USA, South Africa and China, this vital new book gives a truly global picture of the rapidly changing situation.

Financing Access and Equity in Higher Education, 2019-02-11. The demand for higher education worldwide is booming. Governments want well educated citizens and knowledge workers but are scrambling for funds. The capacity of the public sector to provide increased and equitable access to higher education is seriously challenged. What are the on the ground realities of developing financial resources and policies to meet the twin goals of equity and access without jeopardizing quality? This volume provides in depth reports from selected countries and sub regions: Morocco, Korea, England, Uganda, Poland, Oman, East and southern Africa, Southeast Asia, Brazil and Egypt. Each chapter is written by a seasoned educator participating in the Fulbright New Century Scholar program for 2007-2008. Given the near universal constraints of declining resources but increasing enrollments, the authors identify common trends such as the public-private divide, the privatization of the public sector and diversification of funding. To address these issues, the chapters examine a surprising variety of policy instruments such as means testing, targeted subsidies, cost sharing, institutional aid, student bursaries and tax exemptions.

Higher Education Finance Research Mary P. McKeown-Moak, Christopher M. Mullin, 2014-02-01. There is a void in the literature on how to conduct research in the finance and economics of higher education. Students, professors and practitioners have no concise document that examines the field.

provides history definitions of terms sources of data and research methods Higher Education Finance Research Policy Politics and Practice fills that void The book is structured in four parts The first section provides a brief history and description of the general organization of American higher education the sources and uses of funds over the last 100 years and who is served in what types of institutions Definitions of terms that are unique to higher education are provided and some basic rules for conducting research on the economics and finance of higher education are established Although in some ways conducting research in higher education funding is similar to that for elementary secondary education there are some important distinctions that also are provided The second section introduces guiding philosophies sources of data data elements vocabulary metrics and analytics related to institutional revenues and expenditures Chapters in this section focus on student oriented revenues institutionally oriented revenues and funding formulas The third section introduces accountability related concepts by first examining the accountability movement in higher education and performance based approaches applied in budgeting and funding then looking at methods to determine public and private returns on investment in postsecondary education and closing with an examination of finance from the perspective of the primary consumer students The fourth and last section of the book focuses on presenting postsecondary finance research to policy audiences to assist in connecting academic research and policy making Chapters focus on accounting for time considerations in analysis the placing of data in context to make the data and findings relevant and ways to effectively communicate findings to various policy making audiences

Sharing the Costs of Higher Education Donald Bruce Johnstone, 1986 The educational and living costs of undergraduate studies and the ways these costs are shared among parents students taxpayers and philanthropists donors are considered for five countries the United States the United Kingdom the Federal Republic of Germany France and Sweden Five policy issues that are linked to how costs are shared by parents students and the general taxpayer are identified including the participation in higher education by low income and other previously excluded groups The five country profiles and comparative analysis consider the out of pocket costs faced by students and parents the expected parental contribution if any and how it is derived the expected student contribution from savings work or loans the taxpayer borne contribution e g need based grants loan subsidies trends and issues regarding the sharing of higher education costs within each country problems or issues common to all five countries and each country's structure and governance of higher education Appended materials describe the concept of purchasing power parity as well as concepts for separating subsidized loans into a true loan and an effective grant SW

Who Should Pay? Natasha Quadlin, Brian Powell, 2022-01-14 Americans now obtain college degrees at a higher rate than at any time in recent decades in the hopes of improving their career prospects At the same time the rising costs of an undergraduate education have increased dramatically forcing students and families to take out often unmanageable levels of student debt The cumulative amount of student debt reached nearly 1.5 trillion in 2017 and calls for student loan forgiveness have gained momentum Yet public policy to address college affordability has been mixed While some policymakers support more public funding to broaden educational access others oppose this expansion Noting that public opinion often shapes public policy sociologists Natasha Quadlin and Brian Powell examine public opinion on who should shoulder the increasing costs of higher education and why Who Should Pay draws on a decade s worth of public opinion surveys analyzing public attitudes about whether parents students or the government should be primarily responsible for funding higher education Quadlin and Powell find that between 2010 and 2019 public opinion has shifted dramatically in favor of more government funding In 2010 Americans overwhelming believed that parents and students were responsible for the costs of higher education Less than a decade later the percentage of Americans who believed that federal or state local government should be the primary financial contributor has more than doubled The authors contend that the rapidity of this change may be due to the effects of the 2008 financial crisis and the growing awareness of the social and economic costs of high levels of student debt Quadlin and Powell also find increased public endorsement of shared responsibility between individuals and the government in paying for higher education The authors additionally examine attitudes on the accessibility of college for all whether higher education at public universities should be free and whether college is worth the costs Quadlin and Powell also explore why Americans hold these beliefs They identify individualistic and collectivist world views that shape public perspectives on the questions of funding accessibility and worthiness of college Those with more individualistic orientations believed parents and students should pay for college and that if students want to attend college then they should work hard and find ways to achieve their goals Those with collectivist orientations believed in a model of shared responsibility one in which the government takes a greater level of responsibility for funding education while acknowledging the social and economic barriers to obtaining a college degree for many students The authors find that these belief systems differ among socio demographic groups and that bias sometimes unconscious and sometimes deliberate regarding race and class affects responses from both individualistic and collectivist oriented participants Public opinion is typically very slow to change Yet Who Should Pay provides an illuminating account of just how quickly public opinion has shifted regarding the responsibility of paying for a college education and its implications for future generations of students Paying the Piper Michael S. McPherson, Morton Owen Schapiro, Gordon C.
