to solving the problem of rural poverty in agrarian economies where large sections of populace are engaged in low paying agriculture. On a wider front these reforms could help in providing growth impetus to an economy and even the global economy at large. Yet the subject of liberalizing agricultural markets is also part of a broad and perhaps a bitter political debate between national and sub national policy makers and academic discourses in India and other countries. A clearer understanding and a possible resolution of the issues involved will be decidedly useful. The experience of India, one of the largest and most agriculture dominated economies, will undoubtedly provide valuable lessons not only for steering the domestic economic policy but also for other countries to set their own policy agenda. The book attempts to capture the evolving reality in a large and diverse country and presents an objective evaluation to enable aspiring investors and those in policy making, food business and civil society to make more informed assessment and decision.

Party System in India

Ajay K Mehra, India's party system has been under flux, transformation and reconfiguration since the end of the 1980s. By the time the sun set on the twentieth century, the party system in India had developed a plurality of national and regional levels and following several experiences in fits and starts, coalition making among the parties too stabilized at the national level. The dawn of the twenty first century thus witnessed a federalized party system in place where coalition making and cohabitation amongst the parties stabilized at both national and regional levels. As a result, since 1999, India has had two completing governments completing their full term at the national level; the third UPA II has completed four years and despite hiccups is likely to complete its full term till mid 2013. However, the party system in the country has turned competitive and several trajectories of alternation are being attempted by parties and leaders, making the emerging political situation fluid. The volume attempts to capture the emerging trajectories of the party system in India in the second decade of the twenty first century with seventeen essays written specially for this volume by scholars who met several times to discuss and formulate questions and critique each other's drafts. Overall, the volume provides an incisive and comprehensive analysis of the far reaching changes that India's political parties and party system are undergoing. It looks into the institutional dimensions, processes and agenda, federal manifestations, transitions including generational change and extraneous influences brought in by globalization, Indian Diaspora and the impact of new media technology. Constituting an important contribution to the ongoing debate on the Indian party system, this volume will attract the attention of students of Indian politics, political science, democracy, party systems and comparative politics.
