Star Wars Will Brooker, 2020-10-01 The release of Star Wars in 1977 marked the start of what would become a colossal global franchise. Star Wars remains the second highest grossing film in the United States and George Lucas's six-part narrative has grown into something more: a culture that goes far beyond the films themselves with tie-in toys, novels, comics, games, and DVDs, as well as an enthusiastic fan community which creates its own Star Wars fictions. Critical studies of Star Wars have treated it as a cultural phenomenon or in terms of its special effects, fans, and merchandising, or as a film that marked the end of New Hollywood's innovation and the birth of the blockbuster. Will Brooker's illuminating study of the film takes issue with many of these commonly held ideas about Star Wars. He provides a close analysis of Star Wars as a film, carefully examining its shots, editing, sound design, cinematography, and performances. Placing the film in the context of George Lucas's previous work, from his student shorts to his 1970s features, and the diverse influences that shaped his approach, from John Ford to Jean-Luc Godard, Brooker argues that Star Wars is not, as Lucas himself has claimed, a departure from his earlier cinema, but a continuation of his experiments with sound and image. He reveals Lucas's contradictory desires for total order and control embodied by the Empire, and for the raw energy and creative improvisation of the Rebels. What seemed a simple fairy tale becomes far more complex when we realise that the director is rooting for both sides, and this tension unsettles the saga as a whole, blurring the boundaries between Empire and Republic, dark side and light side, father and son. In his foreword to this new edition, Will Brooker discusses how subsequent films in the series, specifically Rogue One (2016) and The Last Jedi (2017), foregrounded and developed the themes of opposition that are at the heart of Star Wars. He shows how Derridean theories of opposites, which become undermined and subverted, and which change places, are made more clear with hindsight and provide us with a useful lens for looking back at the 1977 Star Wars.

Speaking in Subtitles Tessa Dwyer, 2017-05-18 Over 6000 different languages are used in the world today, but the conventions of media speak are far from universal, and the complexities of translation are rarely acknowledged by the industry, audiences, or scholars. Redressing this neglect, Speaking in Subtitles argues that the specific contingencies of translation are vital to screen media's global storytelling. Looking at a range of examples from silent era intertitling to contemporary crowdsourced subtitling and from avant garde dubbing to the increasing practice of fansubbing Tessa Dwyer proposes that screen media itself is a fundamentally translational field

Rhizomes Nathalie Ramière, Rachel Varshney, 2021-02-19 This volume Rhizomes is a challenging path into a very multidisciplinary set of papers Papers range across cultural studies and film to applied linguistics to sociolinguistics and as gathered in this one volume the result of postgraduate student research of a very high order they force readers to think critically of disciplines their assumed boundaries and most importantly the usefulness of assuming the enduring value of such boundaries This is not to say that anything goes but the diversity of areas under scrutiny means that sharper re thinking of one's own comfort zones is necessarily one key outcome when confronted with a volume like this This is one advantage of the selected papers besides the obvious one of having at your finger tips a simple way of delving into a challenging diversity

Brian Ridge Campion College Sydney This is a wonderful collection of papers which demonstrates the power and vitality of contemporary literary and cultural research The scope of the papers the diversity of the subject matter and the willingness of their authors to work across disciplinary boundaries work together to create an exemplary collection of research for the twenty first century multidisciplinary multigeneric and multimodal like 21st century texts and media Greg Hainge's opening paper sets the stage for the diverse and engaging papers that follow With his own examples of rhizomatics drawn from music Greg immediately has the reader acknowledging the multidisciplinary and multimodality of contemporary texts and so the need for research that can address the richness and complexity of these texts In Part 1 we have two papers that address the issue of the limitations of conventional research methodology in their own fields language acquisition film studies and propose alternative and more productive methodologies The exciting thing about this section is that these are fields normally considered very different and without much to say to one another and yet the combination works to create a dialogue that extends across these and many other fields of research Most importantly both challenge the dichotomising of research and analytical methods that has worked to impoverish their fields and the research on which it is based Part 2 presents papers on a range of marginalised social positionings and experiences and in the process demonstrates both the power of research to uncover what has been ignored or elided in contemporary histories how many westerners know of the long history of Chinese women in film Or of an Aboriginal Taiwanese literature as well as the power of new perspectives new ways of thinking the research subject to open up areas of study such as dating manuals and country music both conventionally dismissed as inherently trivial and or sexist In Part 3 the papers all play brilliantly with the notion of connectivity demonstrating for readers the inextricability of texts and meaning systems verbal visual and other with the cultural contexts in which they operate and so the diverse ways they may be deployed These papers banish forever any reliance on a formalist reading or methodology for the analysis of text and meaning And again the range of subject matter is breath taking and argues the need for cross disciplinary transdisciplinary and multidisciplinary research practice Part 4 takes the reader into the realm of transformations challenging the ways in which textual and systemic changes articulate profound cultural changes in the societies that produce them So we learn about grammatical interventions in the Chinese language as feminine and neuter pronouns are added to the gender free Chinese language and consider the major cultural change that both caused this change and is subsequently produced by it We consider the ways in which cinema has evolved as an art form under the influence of its material and verbal technologies And we consider the ways in which Chinese poetry has entered a range of cultural practices in the west and the east and again consider how its traditional meanings and significance are maintained and communicate to these new contexts and the nature of the transcultural experience this generates For the academic student or interested reader this collection offers a breath taking scope of subject matter and a vital and engaged approach to the material that makes this collection a research page turner Professor Anne Cranny Francis Department of Critical and Cultural Studies Macquarie University Sydney
