

Agriculture: Bearer Plants (Amendments to IAS 16 and IAS 41)

At a glance

Agriculture: Bearer Plants (Amendments to IAS 16 and IAS 41) was issued in June 2014. The amendments change the financial reporting for bearer plants such as grape vines, rubber trees and oil palms. The new requirements are effective from 1 January 2016, with earlier application permitted.

Prior to these amendments, IAS 41 Agriculture required all biological assets related to agricultural activity to be measured at fair value less costs to sell. This is based on the principle that the biological transformation that these assets undergo during their lifespan is best reflected by fair value measurement. However, there is a subset of biological assets, known as bearer plants, which are used solely to grow produce over several periods. At the end of their productive lives they are usually scrapped. Once a bearer plant is mature, apart from bearing produce, its biological transformation is no longer significant in generating future economic benefits. The only significant future economic benefits it generates come from the agricultural produce that it creates.

The IASB decided that bearer plants should be accounted for in the same way as property, plant and equipment in IAS 16 Property, Plant and Equipment, because their operations is similar to that of manufacturing. Consequently, the amendments exclude them within the scope of IAS 41, instead of IAS 41. The produce growing on bearer plants will remain within the scope of IAS 41.

Issues in Agricultural Trade Policy Proceedings of the 2014 OECD Global Forum on Agriculture

OECD, 2015-05-05 This book brings together a collection of papers prepared for the Global Forum on Agriculture that took place at the OECD in December 2014 The Political Economy of the 2014-2020 Common Agricultural Policy Johan F.M.

Swinnen, 2015-07-30 After five years of debates consultations and negotiations the European institutions reached an agreement in 2013 on the Common Agricultural Policy CAP for the 2014-2020 period The outcome has major implications for the EU's budget and farmers' incomes but also for Europe's environment its contribution to global climate change and to food security in the EU and in the world It was decided to spend more than 400 billion during the rest of the decade on the CAP The official claims are that the new CAP will take better account of society's expectations and lead to far reaching changes by making subsidies fairer and greener and making the CAP more efficient It is also asserted that the CAP will play a key part in achieving the overall objective of promoting smart sustainable and inclusive growth However there is significant scepticism about these claims and disappointment with the outcome of the decision making the first in which the European Parliament was involved under the co-decision procedure In contrast to earlier reforms where more substantive changes were made to the CAP the factors that induced the policy discussions in 2008-13 and those that influenced the decision making did not reinforce each other On the contrary they sometimes counteracted one another yielding an imperfect storm as it were resulting in more status quo and fewer changes This book discusses the outcome of the decision making and the factors that influenced the policy choices and decisions It brings together contributions from leading academics from various disciplines and policy makers and key participants in the process from the European Commission and the European Parliament
