Redrawing Local Government Boundaries John Meligrana, 2004 Local governments today are under extreme pressure to undertake boundary reform The global trend toward urbanization has brought with it economic environmental social and regional demands that have severe implications for local governments and their territories As a result changing the areal jurisdiction of this most basic level of government has become a persistent and pressing challenge around the globe This collection examines the legal and regulatory procedures involved in such municipal restructuring Case studies from eight nations the United States Canada Spain Germany Israel Korea China and South Africa investigate how and why local governments have been enlarged in scope and reduced in number within each country Four key aspects are examined the geography of the local government boundary problem the procedures associated with boundary reform the roles of institutions and actors in boundary reform and the implications for urban and regional governance Redrawing Local Government Boundaries offers a broad theoretical understanding of local government boundary reform and informs the wider scholarly discussion about institutional change state structures and the areal jurisdiction of local governments The first international comparative study of local boundary reform it will be a valuable reference for scholars and students of political science public administration geography urban studies and urban planning Human Heritage Miriam Greenblatt, Peter S. Lemmo, 2001 A world history textbook chronicling the rise of Western and Eastern civilizations Includes photos art illustrated charts vocabulary exercises and review questions Behavior and Environment T. Garling, R.G. Golledge, 1993-01-28 Active researchers in the areas of geography and psychology have contributed to this book Both fields are capable of increasing our scientific knowledge of how human behavior is interfaced with the molar physical environment Such knowledge is essential for the solution of many of today's most urgent environmental problems Failure to constrain use of scarce resources pollution due to human activities creation of technological hazards and deteriorating urban quality due to vandalism and crime are all well known examples The influence of psychology in geographical research has long been appreciated but it is only recently that psychologists have recognized they have something to learn from geography In identifying the importance of two way interdisciplinary communication a psychologist and a geographer have been invited to each write a chapter in this book on a designated topic so that close comparisons can be drawn as to how the two disciplines approach the same difficulties Since the disciplines are to some extent complementary it is hoped that this close collaboration will have synergistic effects on the attempts of both to find solutions to environmental problems through an increased understanding of the many behavior environment interfaces
