

Background 10

Examine the karyotype in Background 10 in detail in the next step.

Background 10 is a karyotype.

How do you know?

Because there is a regular pattern of chromosomes in each row. The chromosomes are arranged in pairs, and each pair has a unique color and banding pattern.

How do you think the cells in this karyotype were prepared?

1. Cells were prepared by treating cells with a chemical that causes them to arrest in metaphase. The cells were then treated with a chemical that causes them to arrest in metaphase.

Which step was the most important? Why? (The most important step was the one that caused the cells to arrest in metaphase, because this is the only time when the chromosomes are visible and can be counted.)
