Ferdinand Hodler 162 Paintings Annotated Masterpieces Volume 29:

Ferdinand Hodler Maria Tsaneva, 2015-01-05 Ferdinand Hodler was one of the famous Swiss painters of the 19th century. His early maturity paintings were landscapes, figure compositions and portraits treated with a strong realism. He made a voyage to Basel in 1875 where he studied the paintings of Hans Holbein. In the last decade of the 19th century, his work progressed to combine influences from several genres including symbolism and art nouveau. He developed a style which he called Parallelism, characterized by groupings of figures symmetrically arranged in poses suggesting ritual or dance. Hodler's work in his final phase took on an expressionist aspect with strongly colored and geometrical figures. Landscapes were pared down to essentials, sometimes consisting of a jagged wedge of land between water and sky. These mystical, non-realistic paintings depicting an escape from the bourgeois cares of modern life gained Hodler first notoriety and then popularity. Ferdinand Hodler Jill Lloyd, Ulf Küster, Neue Galerie New York, 2013. During the final years of his life, Ferdinand Hodler (1853-1918) continued to develop his painting, creating some of his most important and touching masterpieces. In series and variations, he lent new liberated form to his life's great themes: the beauty of the Swiss mountains and lakes, his fascination for women, the examination of his own life and the confrontation with death. Essentially the same book as 9783775733809, which we released in September 2012 with a slightly different cover and format. Ferdinand Hodler Sharon L. Hirsh, Ferdinand Hodler, 1981. Met vele reproducties geïllustreerde beschrijving van de Zwitserse schilder 1853-1918. Ferdinand Hodler Ferdinand Hodler, 2012. Ferdinand Hodler's emotionally loaded landscapes and ritualized portraits were among the earliest harbingers of Expressionist painting in Europe and a key bridge between the idioms of late nineteenth-century Symbolism, Realism and modernist Expressionism. Published for a major 2012 exhibition at New York's Neue Galerie, this volume gathers a selection of Hodler's best-loved work, his famous late paintings in which figures are heavily stylized and landscapes are pared down to simple effects of mood and color, his outstanding works on paper and the much acclaimed, extremely moving series of works chronicling the illness and early death of the artist's lover Valentine Goddard. A documentary section reproduces letters, sketchbooks and photographs that illuminate the relationship between Hodler and Goddard. Central to this publication is the role that series and variations play throughout Hodler's oeuvre, most famously in his groups of figures arranged in ritualized poses, a style to which he gave the name Parallelism. This volume reveals Hodler both as a painter of great emotional intensity and as a crucial progenitor of the Expressionist worldview. Ferdinand Hodler (1853-1918) was born in Bern, Switzerland. By the time Hodler was eight years old, he had lost his father and two younger brothers to tuberculosis; his mother and remaining siblings would also succumb to the disease, instilling in the artist a heightened sense of mortality. The Vienna Secession's 1903 exhibition of his work, for which Josef Hofmann built the galleries, was decisive for Expressionist painters such as Emil Nolde and particularly Ernst Ludwig Kirchner, who later made a woodcut portrait of Hodler in homage to his influence.
