1. How does the attitude of Colonel Robert Gould Shaw toward African-Americans change and why?

Colonel Shaw's attitude toward African-Americans changes over the course of the movie. At first, he is a white supremacist who believes that African-Americans are inferior and should not be allowed to fight in the military. However, as he sees the bravery and sacrifice of the men of the 54th Massachusetts, he begins to change his mind and becomes a more progressive leader.

2. What differences exist among the black soldiers who make up the 54th Massachusetts? Volunteered Infantry? Forced into this hell you should see different experiences of blacks in 18th-century America? There should be a range of origins, former status (enslaved), and educational background.

There are many differences among the black soldiers who make up the 54th Massachusetts. Some were volunteers, while others were forced into the army. They came from different backgrounds and had different levels of education.

3. What attitudes did white soldiers have about the 54th? Did these attitudes change and why?

White soldiers initially had negative attitudes toward the 54th, viewing them as inferior and untrustworthy. However, as they fought together, these attitudes began to change, and many white soldiers came to respect the bravery and skill of the black soldiers.

No, blacks were not treated equally to whites in the Union army. They were paid less, given less food and shelter, and were often subjected to discrimination and abuse from white soldiers and officers.

5. What is significant about Colonel Shaw's decision to refuse to surrender?

Colonel Shaw's decision to refuse to surrender is significant because it shows his commitment to the principles of equality and justice. He believed that the 54th had earned the right to be treated as equal to the white soldiers, and he was willing to sacrifice his own life to stand up for them.

6. Did that incident end as you expected? What feelings?/ought to make you feel good?
