Foster, 2026-01-22 This Very Short Introduction draws on the latest research in neuroscience and psychology to explore the science of memory It uses case studies anecdotes literature and philosophy to explain how memory works and why we can't live without it Memory Jonathan K. Foster, 2009 Jonathan K Foster brings together research in neuroscience and psychology weaving in case studies anecdotes literature and philosophy to explore and explain the science of memory how it works and why we can't live without it Performing Early Christian Literature Kelly Iverson, 2021-10-07 Scholars of early Christian literature acknowledge that oral traditions lie behind the New Testament gospels While the concept of orality is widely accepted it has not resulted in a corresponding effort to understand the reception of the gospels within their oral milieu In this book Kelly Iverson reconsiders the experiential context in which early Christian literature was received and interpreted He argues that reading and performance are distinguishable media events and significantly that they produce distinctive interpretive experiences for readers and audiences alike Iverson marshals an array of methodological perspectives demonstrating how performance generates a unique experiential context that shapes and informs the interpretive process Iverson's study explores the dynamic oral environment in which ancient audiences experienced the gospel stories He shows why an understanding of oral performance has important implications for the study of the NT as well as for several issues that are largely unquestioned by biblical scholars The College Lecture Today Lee Trepanier, 2019-06-26 In an age of online education and educational philosophies like flipping the classroom does the lecture have any role in today's university Drawing from the humanities and social sciences and from a range of different types of schools The College Lecture Today makes the affirmative case for the lecture in the humanities and social and political sciences These essays explore how to lecture without sacrificing theoretical knowledge Shakespeare and Memory Hester Lees-Jeffries, 2013-08-22

Language in the Modular Mind John Truscott, 2022-06-16 The book explores two fundamental aspects of the human mind and their relation to one another The first is the way that information is put to use in the mind When we are doing a mental arithmetic problem for example how do we bring the relevant bits of information to mind and hold them there while carrying out the series of calculations This is working memory the subject of an enormous research literature in psychology neuroscience and a great many other disciplines Characterizing the working memory process is now a major part of efforts to understand the human mind How we characterize this process depends of course on how we characterize the human mind as a whole In particular is the mind made up of a number of distinct units each carrying out a specialized function There is considerable reason to say that it is and this modular view of the mind has become prominent in a great deal of academic work notably in cognitive neuroscience with important implications for our understanding of how working memory works But these implications have received surprisingly little consideration to this point The aim of the book is to explore this relation between working memory and modularity first in general terms and then using a specific modular view of the mind the Modular Cognition Framework The ideas are illustrated and further developed through an application to language and especially second language acquisition and use

Memory Unbound Lucy Bond, Stef Craps, Pieter Vermeulen, 2016-11-01 Though still a relatively young field memory studies has undergone significant transformations since it first coalesced as an area of inquiry. Increasingly, scholars understand memory to be a fluid, dynamic, unbound phenomenon, a process rather than a reified object. Embodying just such an elastic approach, this state of the field collection systematically explores the transcultural, transgenerational, transmedial, and transdisciplinary dimensions of memory, four key dynamics that have sometimes been studied in isolation but never in such an integrated manner. Memory Unbound places leading researchers in conversation with emerging voices in the field to recast our understanding of memory's distinctive variability.

Memory and the English Reformation Alexandra Walsham, Bronwyn Wallace, Ceri Law, Brian Cummings, 2020-11-12 The dramatic religious revolutions of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries involved a battle over social memory. On one side, the Reformation repudiated key aspects of medieval commemorative culture; on the other, traditional religion claimed that Protestantism was a religion without memory. This volume shows how religious memory was sometimes attacked and extinguished while at other times rehabilitated in a modified guise. It investigates how new modes of memorialisation were embodied in texts, material objects, images, physical buildings, rituals, and bodily gestures. Attentive to the roles played by denial, amnesia, and fabrication, it also considers the retrospective processes by which the English Reformation became identified as an historic event. Examining dissident as well as official versions of this story, this richly illustrated interdisciplinary collection traces how memory of the religious revolution evolved in the two centuries following the Henrician schism and how the Reformation embedded itself in the early modern cultural imagination.

Postnational Memory, Peace and War Nigel Young, 2019-11-26 This book examines the phenomenon of modern memory as a reaction to total war, an aspiration to truth seeking provoked by the independent forces of modern war and collective violence, which is transnational or postnational in character. Using examples from prose and poetry, film and theatre, painting and photography, and music, and the popular arts, the author traces a narrative path through the events of the twentieth century, defining the tradition of modern memory in terms of its essentially anti-militaristic, anti-war character, as expressed in the manner in which it represents recalled violence and atrocity. Through a series of thematic discussions of two world wars, the Shoah, urbicide, and nuclear weapons, Postnational Memory explores the formation of transnational memory, drawing on examples from industrialized societies with a focus on memory of real events and their reproduction in literature and the arts, often including personal recollections that link the self to the represented past. As such, by asking how the concept of modern memory is constructed through the victims of war and genocide, the book constitutes an alternative to national memories and hegemonic militarist or ethnocentric histories. Surveying the emergence of new transnational forms of remembering the past, it will appeal to students and scholars of sociology, memory studies, and peace studies, as well as those working in disciplines such as modern and international history, cultural studies, and military studies.

Configuring Memory in Czech Family Sagas Marcin Filipowicz, 2021-11-09 Configuring Memory in Czech Family Sagas: The Art of Forgetting in Generic Tradition explores how literature may configure family memory. Family sagas can be viewed as a structure helping us to share our memories Special attention will be paid to crucial generic motifs within family sagas as well as to elements of the narrative structure which hold powerful memory forming potential The book proves that this potential can be fulfilled in two ways The genre under analysis tends to strengthen the bad family memory and consider it as a burden and to encourage one to forget their family past Despite the prevalence of the saga as a cultural form right across mass media the literary genre of the family saga has not attracted intensive critical acclaim Readers of this book will not only learn more about the genre of family saga but also be encouraged to reflect on their own family memories populism from different angles and in different contexts The contributors to the volume discuss dominant notions of European heritage that circulate in the public sphere and in political discourse and consider how the politics of fear relates to such notions of European heritage and identity across and beyond Europe and the European Union Ultimately this volume will shed light on how notions of a shared European heritage and memory can be used not only to include and connect Europeans but also to exclude some of them Investigating the ways in which nationalist populist forces mobilize the idea of a shared homogeneous European civilization European Memory in Populism will be of interest to scholars and students in the fields of European studies heritage and memory studies migration studies anthropology political science and sociology Chapters 1 4 6 and 10 of this book are freely available as a downloadable Open Access PDF under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives 4.0 license
