

EXERCISES FOR CHAPTER I

Part I. Exercises with solution.

1. How can we classify different kinds of crystal lattice? What is the relation between structure and physical properties?
 - Classifying types of crystal lattice depends on:
 - + Distance between the lattice nodes
 - + Distance between the lattice nodes comparing to the distance between atoms in a unit cell.
 - How do these factor affect to the physical properties:
 - + Island structure (CO_2 , XeF_4 , Ar, H_2O , $\text{K}_2[\text{TiCl}_6]$): the destruction of chemical bonding between the lattice nodes is easier than the destruction of bonding between atoms in a lattice nodes.
 - + Chain structure: covalent bonding in one dimension, octahedron, tetrahedron.
 - Van de Waals fore: the lattice structure is easy to be stripped in to yarn.
 - pi bonding: good conductor, following the direction of chain.
 - features: not crystal-clear, following the direction of chain.
 - Layer crystal structure: covalent bonding in 2 dimensions.
 - Van de Waals force: easy so strip, not hard.
 - Pi bonding: good conductor.
 - Not crystal clear, low hardness, low proportion.
 - Coordination structure: lattice nodes are atoms, singular ions liking to each other by strong forces: metallic bonding, covalent bonding, ionic bonding.
2. What is the critical temperature, the critical volume? Find the phase diagram of CO_2 . Based on the phase diagram of the movement of CO_2 explain the transformation of CO_2 in this schematic. Point three (triple point) on meaningful schema like? Mentioned application of supercritical CO_2 .
 At normal pressure, chemical gas at a specified temperature. Temperature temperature is called liquefaction. In contrast, the liquid at that temperature and evaporation, so that temperature is the boiling point of the liquid.
 However, raising the temperature of liquefaction (or boiling) because the pressure has a certain limit, through which the liquid temperature can not exist despite public pressure.
 The maximum temperature is called the critical temperature (TTH) and pressure needed to liquefy the gas at that temperature called the critical pressure (PTH). Molar volume of a gas at the critical temperature and critical pressure is called the critical volume. In extreme conditions, the volume of gases and liquids equal to where gas and liquids with the same mass ratio.
3. All metals have high melting temperature and boiling temperature. Is this statement right or wrong? Explain?

Metals	Valence configuration	Melting temperature($^{\circ}\text{C}$)	Boiling temperature($^{\circ}\text{C}$)
Hg	$6s^2$	-38,89	356,66
W	$5d^46s^2$	3420	5680
Pb	$6s^26p^2$	327,4	1745
K	$4s^1$	63,55	761
Tl	$6s^26p^1$	304	1475

Basic Principles of Inorganic Chemistry Brian Murphy,Clair Murphy,Brian J. Hathaway,1998 General chemistry textbooks are usually lengthy and present chemistry to the student as an unconnected list of facts In inorganic chemistry emphasis should be placed on the connections between valence shell electron configuration and the physical and chemical properties of the element Basic Principles of Inorganic Chemistry Making the Connections is a short concise book that emphasises these connections in particular the chemistry of the Main Group compounds With reference to chemical properties Lewis Structures stoichiometry and spider diagrams students will be able to predict or calculate the chemistry of simple polyatomic compounds from the valence shell configuration and will no longer be required to memorise vast amounts of factual chemistry This book is ideal for students taking chemistry as a subsidiary subject as well as honours degree students Inorganic Chemistry Ram Charitra Maurya,2021-04-06 This book covers different aspects of Inorganic Chemistry in terms of 10 Chapters with in depth and up to date coverage Starting with the VSEPR theory in the first chapter the book symmetrically presents delocalized p bonding in polyatomic molecules structure bonding and topology of borane and related compounds synthesis and reactivity of metal clusters and their bonding some aspects of stability constants of metal complexes magnetochemistry mechanism of inorganic reactions molecular orbital MO approach of bonding in transition metals bonding in organometallic sandwich compounds based on MO approach Safe and economical inorganic experiments at UG and PG Levels are also presented in the last chapter At the end five relevant topics are included as appendices for updating students and faculty members Multiple Choice Questions in Advanced Level Chemistry Robert Sydney Lowrie,1969 Excel With Objective Questions In Chemistry Prof. S.
