Harcourt School Publishers Math Indiana ,2002-11 The Virginia Mathematics Teacher ,1996 Hoard's Dairyman ,1912 Crossover Teacher Erma McCampbel,2022-12-19 The most difficult time that I can recall was during the school year 1966 1967 I was returning to work after having ended a maternity leave The school board in Tuscaloosa County Alabama asked me to become the first of its Black crossover teachers I reluctantly agreed because up until that time no Black teacher had taught a White child in a public school This appointment came during the Wallace administration and Governor Wallace was openly opposed to this assignment Between the governor the school board the US Justice Department and the US Commission on Civil Rights tolerance levels were somehow raised I was a victim of threats and harassment for such a long time that I learned to expect them Issues were so heated that after four days in the classroom I resigned Three days later I went back to work same position What followed was a year of my being constantly questioned and challenged about everything I did as a seventh grade mathematics teacher For five years I taught in that situation and saw many differences resolved and upon resigning the position to join my husband here in Colorado there was no rejoicing over the fact on the part of teachers students or parents If indeed I have helped Americans in any way to increase their appreciation for each other the experience has been well worth it Computers in Education ,1985 Army Research and Development ,1969
