Massaro,2002-03-20 Neurotoxicology is a broad and burgeoning field of research Its growth in recent years can be related in part to increased interest in and concern with the fact that a growing number of anthropogenic agents with neurotoxic potential including pesticides lead mercury and the polytypic byproducts of combustion and industrial production continue to be spewed into and accumulate in the environment In addition there is great interest in natural products including toxins as sources of therapeutic agents Indeed it is well known that many natural toxins ofbroadly differing structure produced or accumulated for predatory or defensive purposes and toxic agents accumulated incidentally by numerous species function to perturb nervous tissue Components of some of these toxins have been shown to be useful therapeutic agents and or research reagents Unfor of some neurotoxicants of anthropogenic ori tunately the environmental accumulation gin expecially pesticides and metals has resulted in incidents ofhuman poisoning some of epidemic proportion and high levels of morbidity and mortality Furthermore an increasing incidence of neurobehavioral disorders some with baffling symptoms is confronting clinicians It is not clear whether this is merely the re suit of increased vigi lance and or improved diagnostics or a consequence of improved health care In any case the role of exposure to environmental and occupational neurotoxicants in the etiology of these phenomena as well as neurodegenerative diseases is coming under increasing scrutiny and investigation School Shop/tech Directions ,1991 Constructing Professional Discourse Concepción Orna-Montesinos,2012-01-17 This book explores the fascinating role that language plays in the construction of non verbal objects by mapping out the ontological meaning of the specialised concepts and the domain specific knowledge embedded in them In doing so it provides a comprehensive linguistic insight into the discourse of professional domain specific communities and hence into the communication practices and procedures of those communities In this respect the book offers a response to the claims made by many of the most influential applied linguists today such as Vijay Bhatia 1993 2004 John Swales 1990 2004 or Ken Hyland 2002 among others who have consistently defended the need for applied linguistic research into the textual generic and social perspectives on the under researched interrelatedness of the discoursal and professional practices of a discipline Specifically this book provides readers with an integrative multi perspective approach to the study of professional domain specific discourses While it mainly draws on the tenets of genre theory and discourse semantics it also nurtures from the theoretical and empirical foundations of applied linguistics cognitive linguistics corpus linguistics and ontological engineering The book starts from the analysis of domain specific texts as final written products with specific lexico grammatical semantic and rhetorical features to later enquire into the written products as textual artefacts closely linked to the social context of production and interpretation of the text This integrative approach provides fresh new insights into the way the processes of writing are affected by the community specific institutional and socio historical circumstances in which domain specific texts are produced Subject Catalog Library of Congress,
