great things happen SBG is even more challenging in high school In this book the authors share their districts successes moving to alternate assessment methods that promote learning rather than solely achievement The proponents of grade reform highlight the arbitrary nature of grades the undue stress experienced by some learners and the potential interference in the process of learning On the other hand opponents reference the lack of accountability and a shift away from content knowledge that is perceived in many alternate assessment models This book outlines how to remove the negative impacts of grades while still maintaining a high level of accountability While the majority of other books in this space provide a rationale for why the shift is necessary these authors provide the classroom teacher s perspective and concrete examples of how these approaches can be developed and applied They provide sample assessments student work samples an accountability checklist a sample of their rubrics and a review of our collected data

Closing the Circle Sean A. Walmsley, 2008-03-07 In Closing the Circle Sean Walmsley offers education practitioners at all levels, district and school administrators, curriculum supervisors, staff developers, literacy coaches, classroom teachers and special education teachers a coherent framework along with practical advice for setting K-12 language arts expectations and for effectively guiding instruction, assessment, reporting and data analysis. Distilled from the author's extensive experience working with schools and districts, the framework enables educators to prioritize literacy learning and work together more productively to achieve better literacy outcomes for all students. The innovative framework includes five major elements: 1. a set of clearly defined literacy attributes, concise expectations for what students should know, do, understand and experience in the language arts; 2. instructional contributions that best support students, including struggling learners, in acquiring the attributes; 3. appropriate assessments for tracking students' progress; 4. reporting practices that clearly explain the progress achieved; and 5. rigorous analysis of data to inform instruction. The model embraces a broad conception of literacy and includes expectations for reading, writing, listening and speaking as well as viewing and representing, making it especially suitable for learning in the digital era.
