subject English Language and Literature Studies Linguistics grade 2 Justus Liebig University Giessen course English Language and Literature Studies language English abstract Obviously everything that happens to be printed in a newspaper or a magazine or written by a journalist is not going to be linguistically homogeneous nor is there any reason for expecting it to be so Crystal Davy 1969 173 This statement by the famous British linguist David Crystal opens a very interesting discussion on the language of print media If we assume that language as a whole is a vivid and fluid construct that always changes and will never be fixed it is obvious that nothing which has been printed is linguistically homogenous However there are rules and guidelines for the use of language such as grammar and syntax for example As language and its use can be investigated the present study's aim is to investigate the syntax of newspaper articles that deal with football match reports and to establish similarities and differences between different kinds of newspapers namely broadsheets and tabloids Nowadays print media can no longer be imagined without sport reporting and particularly the reportage of football matches Football has become a mainstream pastime and enjoys great popularity It takes up a considerable part of British newspapers depending on the targeted readership of the newspaper in question Even though the sport sections vary in size they can be found in every single issue and in some newspapers take up more space than topics with supposedly more impact on people's lives such as politics or economics Although the newspapers report on the same events there are notable differences in the manner in which they report on them If we consider sport reporting it becomes obvious that the language is always tailored to the audience the newspaper wants to reach Considering the great variety of newspapers and their differences with regard to focuses and targeted readerships it can be assumed that there are differences between up market broadsheet and down market tabloid newspapers concerning the style of writing the research quality or the credibility Above all in the sport section the differences between broadsheet and tabloid reporting become particularly apparent Even at first glance it is obvious that differences are to be found not only do the front page designs of the sport sections vary greatly but it may also be assumed that there are differences concerning the degree of complexity of expression within the articles themselves

Football, Community and Social Inclusion Daniel Parnell, David Richardson, 2017-10-02 This special issue addresses the complex reality of English community football organisations including Football in the Community FitC schemes which have been attending to social agendas such as social inclusion and health promotion The positioning of football as a key agent of change for this diverse range of social issues has resulted in an increase in funding support Despite the increased availability of funding and the apparent willingness of football clubs to adopt such an altruistic position within society there remains limited empirical evidence to substantiate football's ability to deliver results This book explores the current role of a football and football clubs in supporting and delivering social inclusion and health promotion to its community and seeks to examine the philosophical political environmental and practical challenges of this work The power and subsequent lure of a football club and its brand is an ideal vehicle to entice and capture populations that normally ignore or turn away from positive social and or health behaviours The foundations of such a belief are examined outlining key recommendations and considerations for both researchers and practitioners attending to these social and health issues through the vehicle of football This book was originally published as a special issue of Soccer Society

Reading and Writing for Civic Literacy Donald Lazere, 2017-07-05 Lazere's book is heaven sent and will provide a crucial link in the chain of understanding how conflicts are structured and most importantly how they can be rationally addressed a healthy antidote to the scepticism that has become so pervasive in academic life Alan Hausman Hunter College This innovative book addresses the need for college students to develop critical reading writing and thinking skills for self defence in the contentious arena of American civic rhetoric In a groundbreaking reconception of composition theory it presents a comprehensive critical perspective on American public discourse and practical methods for its analysis Exercises following the text sections and readings help students understand the ideological positions and rhetorical patterns that underlie opposing viewpoints in current controversies such as the growing inequality of wealth in America and its impact on the finances of college students as expressed in paired sets of readings from the political left and right Widely debated issues of whether objectivity is possible and whether there is a liberal or conservative bias in news and entertainment media as well as in education itself are foregrounded as topics for rhetorical analysis
