Milton,2014-04-01 Much of the current debate about education too often resembles the blind men describing an elephant apprehending only a particular part of the situation or the process many analysts tell an evocative but incomplete story The so called reform discussion proceeds with a lack of depth about the nuances and realistic limitations in the institutional order of school This book argues that as regulation of schools moves further up the bureaucratic hierarchy first to state departments of education then to the national department of education the legal and institutional requirements get more intensive but less concretely useful in class rooms This bureaucratization serves to tighten the organizational environment thereby increasing the risk of normal accidents The increasing governmental management in other words makes it more likely that schools will fail to meet their goals Analyses of education are too often developed for public consumption in a fast moving political world This book examines some of the deeper organizational reasons why things don t work so well in school as well as a look at some of things that do work Most importantly the book will explain how the social and cultural expectations of what schools can do may create unrealistic hopes We as a society and schools as institutions embrace these unreasonably high hopes at our collective peril Check out Andrew s latest interview with Seattle Radio <http://kiroradio.com> listen 9972862 Brookings Papers on Economic Activity: Fall 2011 Herman Royer Professor of Political Economy David H Romer,Professor of Economics and Public Policy Justin Wolfers,2012-05-04 Brookings Papers on Economic Activity BPEA provides academic and business economists government officials and members of the financial and business communities with timely research on current economic issues Contents

The Parent Trap Nate G. Hilger, 2023-04-04 How parents have been set up to fail and why helping them succeed is the key to achieving a fair and prosperous society Few people realize that raising children is the single largest industry in the United States Yet this vital work receives little political support and its primary workers parents labor in isolation If they ask for help they are made to feel inadequate there is no centralized organization to represent their interests and there is virtually nothing spent on research and development to help them achieve their goals It s almost as if parents are set up to fail and the result is lost opportunities that limit children s success and make us all worse off In The Parent Trap Nate Hilger combines cutting edge social science research revealing historical case studies and on the ground investigation to recast parenting as the hidden crucible of inequality Parents are expected not only to care for their children but to help them develop the skills they will need to thrive in today s socioeconomic reality but most parents including even the most caring parents on the planet are not trained in skill development and lack the resources to get help How do we fix this The solution Hilger argues is to ask less of parents not more America should consider child development a public investment with a monumental payoff We need a program like Medicare call it Familycare to drive this investment To make it happen parents need to organize to wield their political power on behalf of children who will always be the largest bloc of disenfranchised people in this country The Parent Trap exposes the true costs of our society s unrealistic expectations around parenting and lays out a profoundly hopeful blueprint for reform

The Testing Charade Daniel Koretz, 2017-08-31 For decades we ve been studying experimenting with and wrangling over different approaches to improving public education and there s still little consensus on what works and what to do The one thing people seem to agree on however is that schools need to be held accountable we need to know whether what they re doing is actually working But what does that mean in practice High stakes tests Lots of them And that has become a major problem Daniel Koretz one of the nation s foremost experts on educational testing argues in The Testing Charade that the whole idea of test based accountability has failed it has increasingly become an end in itself harming students and corrupting the very ideals of teaching In this powerful polemic built on unimpeachable evidence and rooted in decades of experience with educational testing Koretz calls out high stakes testing as a sham a false idol that is ripe for manipulation and shows little evidence of leading to educational improvement Rather than setting up incentives to divert instructional time to pointless test prep he argues we need to measure what matters and measure it in multiple ways not just via standardized tests Right now we re lying to ourselves about whether our children are learning And the longer we accept that lie the more damage we do It s time to end our blind reliance on high stakes tests With The Testing Charade Daniel Koretz insists that we face the facts and change course and he gives us a blueprint for doing better

How Political Correctness Weakens Schools Jim

Dueck,2016-12-07 Education for this generation s youth is the key for our nation s future well being but it is now threatened by political correctness A politically correct environment seeks to avoid controversial issues by maintaining the status quo on matters related to workers in the education system while avoiding the best interests of the stakeholders and it is for this reason that political correctness must be challenged on many issues in our school system so that our children have a better chance for learning well and then living well This book s focus is on using accountability to pressure the system toward implementing reforms necessary for winning It deals with educational policies which are controversial and also identified by others for being problematic rather than classroom practices The solutions or recommendations proposed are intended to ensure that policies align with the best interests of students parents and taxpayers rather than with those of the service providers
