

2. Probabilities of sequences.

Assume that the four bases A, C, T, and G occur with equal likelihood in a DNA sequence of nine monomers.

- (a) What is the probability of finding the sequence AAATCGAGT through random chance?
- (b) What is the probability of finding the sequence AAAAAAAAAA through random chance?
- (c) What is the probability of finding any sequence that has four A's, two T's, two G's, and one C, such as that in (a)?

- (a) Each base occurs with probability $1/4$. The probability of an A in position 1 is $1/4$, of A in position 2 is $1/4$, of A in position 3 is $1/4$, of T in position 4 is $1/4$, and so on. There are 9 bases. The probability of this specific sequence is $(1/4)^9 = 3.8 \times 10^{-6}$.
- (b) Same answer as (a) above.
- (c) Each specific sequence has the probability given above, but in this case there are many possible sequences which satisfy the requirement that we have 4 A's, 2 T's, 2 G's, and 1 C. How many are there? We start as we have done before, by assuming all nine objects are distinguishable. There are $9!$ arrangements of nine distinguishable objects in a linear sequence. (The first one can be in any of nine places, the second in any of the remaining eight places, and so on.) But we can't distinguish the four A's, so we have overcounted by a factor of $4!$, and must divide this out. We can't distinguish the two T's, so we have overcounted by $2!$, and must also divide this out. And so on. So the probability of having this composition is

Computational Approaches in Supramolecular Chemistry G. Wipff, 2012-12-06 Supramolecular chemistry has been defined by J M Lehn as a highly interdisciplinary field of science covering the chemical physical and biological features of chemical species of higher complexity that are held together and organized by means of intermolecular noncovalent binding interactions Science 1993 Recognition reactivity and transport represent three basic functional features in essence dynamics which may be translated into structural features The purpose of the NATO workshop which took place September 1-5 1993 at the Bischenberg near Strasbourg was to present computations which may contribute to the atomic level understanding of the structural and thermodynamical features involved in the processes of molecular recognition and supramolecular organization of supramolecular modeling Other The main focus was therefore on the many facets applications of computers in chemistry such as automation simulation of processes procedures for fitting kinetic or thermodynamic data computer assisted synthetic strategies use of data bases for structure elucidation or for bibliographic searches have an obvious impact in supramolecular chemistry as well but were not presented at the workshop
