(Group 1) How do Washington's two communities develop differently over time?

(On May 28, 1988, Mount St. Helens lay in ruins after an earthquake triggered with the force of a hydrogen bomb. The volcano that once dominated for over 100 years, had more of its conical shape than great forests and lakes were totally destroyed, including nearby Spirit Lake, which became a dead lake. The local Washingtonian community was about 20 miles from the crater and only slightly affected like in the immediate aftermath, which means, especially from the lake, which was destroyed almost completely in the area, and there were three years later, many areas of the mountain were covered with a large variety of plant and animal life. How does the area move from a state of disaster to a state of recovery?
