

Edith Wharton

Edith Wharton (born Edith Newbold Jones, January 24, 1862 – August 15, 1937) was an American writer and designer. Wharton drew upon her insider's knowledge of the upper-class New York "aristocracy" to portray realistically the lives and morals of the Gilded Age. In 1907, she became the first woman to win the Pulitzer Prize in Fiction, for her novel The Age of Innocence. She was inducted into the National Academy of Arts in 1930. Among her other well-known works are The House of Mirth, the novella Ethan Frome, and several notable ghost stories.

Despite not publishing her first novel until she was forty, Wharton became an extraordinarily productive writer. In addition to her 15 novels, seven novellas, and eighty-five short stories, she published poetry, books on design, travel, travel and lecture notes, and a memoir.

Many of Wharton's novels are characterized by subtle irony, and she is often credited with being the first American writer to use the technique of the "unreliable narrator".

Wharton's novels, such as The House of Mirth, The Age of Innocence, and Ethan Frome, are set in the Gilded Age, a period of rapid economic growth, marked by the rise of a new industrial elite and the expansion of the capitalist system. Her novels often focus on the lives of the upper class, and her writing is characterized by a keen eye for detail and a deep understanding of the social and cultural mores of the time.

Industrial Revolution and the Arts
The Industrial Revolution brought about a profound change in the way people lived and worked. It led to the growth of cities, the rise of a new middle class, and the decline of the traditional aristocracy. This period of rapid change also led to a new interest in the arts, as people sought to express their feelings and experiences in a way that reflected the new world.
