Woods and People David Foot, 2010-09-06 Britain's great cloak of natural forest disappeared mostly in prehistoric times Over the passage of time and by the industrial revolution Britain's economy had become almost entirely dependent on timber imports from abroad Shipping blockades in the First World War meant a frantic search for woodlands that could be cut down to make vital pit props and sawn wood for wartime construction After the war Britain's tree cover was near to an all time low Only since 1919 have practical measures been taken to reverse the long history of forest decline and a hundred years of tree planting has seen the forest cover of Britain more than double Today tree planting in Britain is motivated more by environmental and social concerns than purely timber production In Woods and People David Foot reveals the story of twentieth century forest creation and the eureka moment in the 1980s that challenged foresters and conservationists to work together on new ideas Forestry and British Timber, 1982 Timber Harvesting, 1988 Forest Industries, 1987 The Coevolution Quarterly, 1975 Flying Blind Don Mitchell, 2013 When Middlebury writing professor Don Mitchell was approached by a biologist with the Vermont Fish and Wildlife Department about tracking endangered Indiana bats on his 150 acre farm in Vermont's picturesque Champlain Valley Mitchell's relationship with bats and with government could be characterized as distrustful at best But the flying rats as Mitchell initially thinks of them launched him on a series of improvements to his land that would provide a more welcoming habitat for the bats and a modest tax break for himself and his family Whether persuading his neighbors to join him on a silent meditation pulling invasive garlic mustard out of the ground by hand navigating the tacit ground rules of buying an ATV off Craigslist or leaving just enough honeysuckle to give government inspectors something to find Mitchell's tale is as profound as it is funny a journey that changes Mitchell's relationship with Chiroptera the land and ultimately his understanding of his own past Ruminating on the nature of authority the purview of the state and the value of inhabiting one's niche Mitchell reveals much about our inner and outer landscape in this perfectly paced and skilled story of place AMJ, Agricultural Machinery Journal, 1979 U.S. News & World Report, 1994
