Mine Wastes Characterization Treatment And Environmental Impacts:

Mine Wastes Bernd Lottermoser, 2010-07-09 This book is not designed to be an exhaustive work on mine wastes. It aims to serve undergraduate students who wish to gain an overview and an understanding of wastes produced in the mineral industry. An introductory textbook addressing the science of such wastes is not available to students despite the importance of the mineral industry as a resource wealth and job provider. Also the growing importance of the topics mine wastes, mine site pollution and mine site rehabilitation in universities, research organizations and industry requires a textbook suitable for undergraduate students. Until recently undergraduate earth science courses tended to follow rather classical lines focused on the teaching of palaeontology, crystallography, mineralogy, petrology, stratigraphy, sedimentology, structural geology and ore deposit geology. However today and in the future earth science teachers and students also need to be familiar with other subject areas. In particular earth science curriculums need to address land and water degradation as well as rehabilitation issues. These topics are becoming more important to society and an increasing number of earth science students are pursuing career paths in this sector. Mine site rehabilitation and mine waste science are examples of newly emerging disciplines. This book has arisen out of teaching mine waste science to undergraduate and graduate science students and the frustration at having no appropriate text which documents the scientific fundamentals of such wastes. Das,2024-11-20 Mining waste management is an important issue for the mining industry since it entails the safe and responsible disposal of waste created during mining operations This waste comprises tailing waste rock and other mining wastes that if not adequately managed can pose environmental and health problems Effective waste management solutions are required to reduce the environmental impact of mining and preserve the long term viability of mining operations These initiatives include improving mining practices to reduce waste generation establishing effective waste treatment and disposal systems and participating in community outreach and education programme In recent years there has been a growing emphasis on the use of new mining waste management technologies and practices The adoption of modern filtration systems bio remediation techniques and the rehabilitation of abandoned mining sites are examples of these Overall good mining waste management is critical for guaranteeing the mining industry long term sustainability and protecting the environment and communities where mining operations take place Sustainable waste management is the implementation of practices and strategies that aim to minimize aim the negative impact of mining waste while promoting resource efficiency and long term economic viability it involves employing a thorough approach that considers the entire mining waste lifetime from generation to disposal and seeks to reduce waste generation reuse or recycle items and appropriately dispose of any remaining rubbish It attempts to extend the life of materials while reducing the waste volume that is incinerated or dumped in landfills To lessen the detrimental environmental economic social and effects in consumption a thorough approach to sustainable waste management must concentrate on the life cycle of a product Mining wastes can be categorized into overburden waste rock tailings and mine water During mineral extracted beneficiated and processed mining wastes are produced The first stage known as extraction which is the first layer sacking of minerals Typically blasting is used to do this which produces a significant amount of garbage soil debris and other material This is usually only concentrated within the periphery of a mine rental place and occasionally on public land and is useless to the industry The amount of waste produced increases with the size of the mine Because they produce far more trash than underground mines opencast mines are consequently more pollutant intensive Use of tailing waste of iron mines with clay for producing bricks can lead to consumption of large quantities of the waste materials and managing it in an environmentally friendly way On the other hand it can reduce consumption of top soil for making bricks and improve construction materials availability Similarly for preparation of ceramics and polymer composite these wastes can be used which will help in solving social environmental problem
