Mount Kenya 2015 Intakes:

Negotiating Identities in Contemporary Africa Toyin Falola, Emmanuel M. Mbah, 2023-08-29 Negotiating Identities in Contemporary Africa Gender Religion and Ethno cultural Identities explores the changing dynamics of identities in Africa with a focus on gender ethno cultural and religious identity Toyin Falola and Emmanuel M Mbah argue that because identity defines who we are as individuals or groups studies on African identities must focus on understanding the changing dynamics in the socio economic and political spheres in the continent These chapters cover subjects such as women s career identity gender roles and knowledge childlessness ethnocentrism and democracy cultural identity through theater Black identity in the diaspora and diasporic consciousness Using existing scholarship the chapters in this edited volume challenge our understanding of what identity entails and provide new discussions on the hitherto politicized historiography of some identities in Africa

Baseline review and ecosystem services assessment of the Tana River Basin, Kenya Baker, Tracy, Kiptala, J., Olaka, L., Oates, N., Hussain, Asghar, McCartney, Matthew, 2015-06-01 The WISE UP to climate project aims to demonstrate the value of natural infrastructure as a nature based solution for climate change adaptation and sustainable development Within the Tana River Basin both natural and built infrastructure provide livelihood benefits for people Understanding the interrelationships between the two types of infrastructure is a prerequisite for sustainable water resources development and management This is particularly true as pressures on water resources intensify and the impacts of climate change increase This report provides an overview of the biophysical characteristics ecosystem services and links to livelihoods within the basin The Collaborative Research Support Program on Food Intake and Human Function Kenya Project

Food Security: Sustainability and Accessibility Sumit Chakravarty, Arun Jyoti Nath, Gopal Shukla, 2024-01-17 Food security satisfies people s dietary needs by ensuring physical social and economic access to sufficient safe and nutritious food Nowadays food security is of prime importance because not only does it overcomes hunger poverty and malnutrition but it also determines the national security and political and economic sovereignty of states However according to the FAO report 2021 2 37 billion people nearly one in three people in the world did not have adequate food availability in 2020 The green revolution created an era of extraordinary food production worldwide but agriculture oriented developing countries face adverse impacts such as loss of ecosystem quality and biodiversity and environmental degradation Besides several challenges such as population growth pollution natural resource depletion agricultural land conversions and climate change are further developing concerns in achieving food security

New Challenges and Future Perspectives in Nutrition and Sustainable Diets in Africa Hettie Carina Schönfeldt, Gloria Essilfie, Yunyun Gong, 2024-05-06 Africa is confronted with the triple burden of malnutrition it is also faced with the triple challenges of poverty inequality and unemployment In many African countries large proportions of the population rely on agriculture not only for their food but also for their livelihoods A transformed agricultural and food system is thus a necessary condition for addressing this double triple challenge Additionally post harvest and food waste and losses reduce the availability of sufficient quantities of safe edible and preferable foods At least one third of food produced at farm level is lost due to inappropriate storage infrastructure and agro processing technologies in developing countries and one third of food purchased is wasted at household and retail level

Maximizing nutrition in fisheries and aquaculture Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, World Vision, 2021-11-29 This guidance note focuses on mainstreaming nutrition into the fisheries sector using Kenya as a case study It is part of a series of guidance notes examining the main food sectors crops fishing forestry and livestock in 12 sub Saharan African countries and providing practical suggestions on formulating programmes and policies that contribute to healthy diets and enhanced nutrition

The State of the World's Biodiversity for Food and Agriculture Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2019-03-12 The State of the World's Biodiversity for Food and Agriculture presents the first global assessment of biodiversity for food and agriculture worldwide Biodiversity for food and agriculture is the diversity of plants animals and micro organisms at genetic species and ecosystem levels present in and around crop livestock forest and aquatic production systems It is essential to the structure functions and processes of these systems to livelihoods and food security and to the supply of a wide range of ecosystem services It has been managed or influenced by farmers livestock keepers forest dwellers fish farmers and fisherfolk for hundreds of generations Prepared through a participatory country driven process the report draws on information from 91 country reports to provide a description of the roles and importance of biodiversity for food and agriculture the drivers of change affecting it and its current status and trends It describes the state of efforts to promote the sustainable use and conservation of biodiversity for food and agriculture including through the development of supporting policies legal frameworks institutions and capacities It concludes with a discussion of needs and challenges in the future management of biodiversity for food and agriculture The report complements other global assessments prepared under the auspices of the Commission on Genetic Resources for Food and Agriculture which have focused on the state of genetic resources within particular sectors of food and agriculture

A blue revolution in sub-Saharan Africa? Evidence from Ghana's tilapia value chain Ragasa, Catherine, Andam, Kwaw S., Kufoalor, Doreen S., Amewu, Sena, Global growth in aquaculture is underway a blue revolution featuring rapid increases in demand for fish and a corresponding surge in aquaculture production This paper describes the fast growing tilapia value chain in Ghana to demonstrate the features of a nascent blue revolution in sub Saharan Africa SSA and to illustrate its potential for job creation and reducing poverty and food insecurity there Tilapia production has been growing at 15 percent annually in SSA but imports are also surging to satisfy the growing appetite for tilapia This paper illustrates how aquaculture can grow sustainably in SSA within the context of growing demand and global competition A value chain analysis is conducted using secondary data analysis desk reviews of experiences and lessons from other countries interviews with 95 actors in the tilapia value chain in Ghana and detailed production and profitability data from Ghanaian tilapia farmers A profitable farmed tilapia industry has been established in Ghana with the potential to expand supply to satisfy local demand and to export to neighboring countries Productivity in the industry has grown mainly through reducing the mortality rates of fingerlings and improvements in the supply of locally produced high quality fish feed Feed costs remain high However there is potential to reduce those costs by improving the productivity of crops that are used in fish feed particularly maize and soybean Reducing local feed costs will have positive spillover effects on both other pond based aquaculture systems and on the livestock feed sector Moreover Ghana can expand its fish feed production to be an important source of feed within SSA The industry can further increase aquaculture productivity through the adoption of faster growing fish strains and better management practices Ghana's aquaculture sector could grow even faster by adopting lessons from other countries including on infrastructure provision fiscal incentives for the production of fish feed ingredients and sustainable fish farming practices particularly through paying close attention to water and feed quality and addressing food safety concerns within the sector
