Queer Philologies Jeffrey Masten, 2016-06-10 For Jeffrey Masten the history of sexuality and the history of language are intimately related In Queer Philologies he studies particular terms that illuminate the history of sexuality in Shakespeare's time and analyzes the methods we have used to study sex and gender in literary and cultural history Building on the work of theorists and historians who have following Foucault investigated the importance of words like homosexual sodomy and tribade in a variety of cultures and historical periods Masten argues that just as the history of sexuality requires the history of language so too does philology the love of the word require the analytical lens provided by the study of sexuality Masten unpacks the etymology circulation transformation and constitutive power of key words within the early modern discourse of sex and gender terms such as conversation and intercourse fundament and foundation friend and boy that described bodies pleasures emotions sexual acts even to the extent possible in this period sexual identities Analyzing the continuities as well as differences between Shakespeare's language and our own he offers up a queer lexicon in which the letter Q is perhaps the queerest character of all

The Gentleman's Magazine: Or, Monthly Intelligencer Edward Cave, 1809 Man's Rights Annie Denton Cridge, 2011-05-01 An early feminist Utopian work Last night I had a dream which may have a meaning

Excerpt Last night I had a dream which may have a meaning I stood on a high hill that overlooked a large city The proud spires of many churches rose high here and there and round about the city were beautiful sloping hills stretching away away into the distance while a broad river wound here and there extending a kindly arm toward the city As I stood there wondering what manner of city it was its name and the character of its inhabitants all at once I found myself in its very midst From house to house I flitted from kitchen to kitchen and lo everywhere the respective duties of man and woman were reversed for in every household I found the men in aprons superintending the affairs of the kitchen Everywhere men and only men were the Bridgets and housekeepers I thought that those gentlemen housekeepers looked very pale and somewhat nervous and when I looked into their spirits for it seemed in my dream that I had the power I saw anxiety and unrest a constant feeling of unpleasant expectancy the result of a long and weary battling with the cares of the household As I looked at those men Bridgets and gentleman housekeepers I said to myself This is very strange Why these men seem unsexed How stoop shouldered they are how weak and complaining their voices I found too that not only was the kitchen exclusively man s but also the nursery in fact all the housework was directed and done by men I felt a sad pity for these men as I flitted from house to house from kitchen to kitchen from nursery to nursery I saw them in the houses of the poor where the man did his own work I saw him in the morning arise early light the fire and begin to prepare the breakfast his face pale and haggard No wonder I thought when I saw how he hurried hurried while in his spirit was a constant fear that the baby would awake Very soon I heard the sharp cry of the baby and away ran the poor father soon returning with baby in his arms carrying it around with him while he raked the fire fried the meat and set the table for breakfast When all was ready down came two or three unwashed unkempt children who must be attended to and when all this was done I observed that the poor gentleman s appetite was gone and pale and nervous he sat down in the rocking chair with the baby in his arms But what greatly astonished me was to see how quietly and composedly the lady of the house drank her coffee and read the morning paper apparently oblivious of the trials of her poor husband and of all he had to endure in connection with his household cares It was wash day and I watched him through that long and weary day First at the wash tub while baby slept then rocking the cradle and washing at the same time then preparing dinner running and hurrying here and there about the house while in his poor disturbed mind revolved the thought of the sewing that ought to be done and only his own hands to do it Evening came and the lady of the house returned to dinner The children came to meet her and as she lifted up one and then another and kissed them I thought Why how beautiful is that woman Then in my dream I seemed to behold every woman of that strange city and ah the marvelous beauty of those women Eye hath not seen neither hath it entered into the heart of man to conceive for a beauty almost angelic was so charmingly combined with intellect and health brooded so divinely over all that at the tout ensemble I was profoundly astonished and intensely delighted Then I turned myself about and was again in the home I had left It was evening the lamp on the table was lighted and there sat the poor husband I have described in his rocking chair darning stockings and mending the children s clothes after the hard day s washing I saw that it had rained that the clothes line had broken
